◆ AI Overview ⋮

An independent examiner is an external person appointed by charity trustees to review annual accounts, providing "negative assurance" that nothing indicates the records are incorrect or fail to comply with regulations. They must be independent of the charity's management and possess the necessary skills, with professional qualifications required if income exceeds £250,000. GOV.UK +3

Key Aspects of an Independent Examiner:

- Definition & Role: Defined by the Charities Act 2011 as a person reasonably believed by trustees to have the ability and experience to conduct a competent examination. It is a "light touch" review, less rigorous than an audit.
- Independence Criteria: The examiner cannot be a trustee, employee, or closely connected to anyone in the management of the charity. They must not be involved in the day-to-day administration or bookkeeping.
- Competence Requirements:
  - Income over £250,000: Must be a member of a professional accountancy body listed in the Charities Act (e.g., ICAEW, ACCA, CIMA).
  - Income £250,000 or less: Not required to be a member of a professional body, but must have sufficient financial awareness, numeracy skills, and understanding of charity accounts.
- Responsibilities: The examiner checks for compliance with regulations, reviews for unusual items, and provides a report to the trustees.
- Reporting: The examiner reports on whether they have reasonable cause to believe that proper records were not kept, the accounts do not match the records, or legal requirements for account preparation were not met. GOV.UK +8
