Achievements and performance

Summary of the main achievements of the charity during the year

In December 2015, the charity undertook its inaugural event. This consisted of an improvised drama course led by Somalia Seaton and attended by 20 individuals, held in Bromley.

The course was open to everyone, but was aimed at achieving a balanced attendance between those suffering from or at risk of isolation, and those who supported the charities' ideals of becoming better connected. The course was advertised through local grass roots charities including Bromley Children Project, Bromley Women's Aid and Mind.

The course was a success, with universally positive feedback received from participants.

However, since that time and to date the charity has undertaken no further activity. This is in part due to personal circumstances of the trustees, including relocation of two of the three present trustees to Scotland.

As at March 2026, the Trustees are considering next steps for further activity.
