Objectives & Activities :

Objectives as set out in the charity governing document :

To make accessible and to educate the general public about historic aircraft by the acquisition of aircraft, sections, and artifacts, and to restore and prepare them for display and loaning to appropriate museums in the U.K. who already specialise in the facilitating of our aims.

Summary of main activities undertaken for the public benefit relating to these aims :

the Cornwall Aviation Heritage Centre in Newquay, Cornwall, displays our Jet Provost exhibit, as the museum promotes open cockpit access and the museum has forged links with many local schools and colleges, which promotes greater interaction with the public than just a museum. This relationship will continue with this exhibit for at least the next year. We chose the RAF Air Defence Radar Museum, Horning, Norfolk, to display the Victor cockpit, as this is a small museum specialising in the history of radar, and the cold war. The museum offered a whole new building to display this cockpit and associated items, and this exhibit has now been relocated to the Avro Heritage Museum, near Manchester.

Achievements & Performance

Main achievements of the charity during the year :

The Aircraft Preservation Foundation currently has two major exhibits on loan and worked long term on the preparation of a Nimrod cockpit.

Jet Provost cockpit : housed at the 'Cornwall Aviation Heritage Centre' near Newquay, Cornwall. The museum is currently rated on Tripadvisor as the No.1 in a list of 36 'things to do' in Newquay - now in the second year at this location and proving very popular.

Victor : housed at the Avro museum near Manchester,

The Nimrod cockpit refurbishment was completed during a period of Covid 19 shutdown when more volunteer time was available. this item is now also displayed in Cornwall, where another exhibit also shows a different version of the same aircraft comparing the development over time of this aircraft.
