Trustees Annual Report

The Charity is constituted as a CIO with a governing document. The Trustees held regular meetings throughout the year to plan and discuss the range of activities as well as to meet for prayer and fellowship. The Trustees regularly evaluate the impact that the activities of the charity have on meeting its objectives and for the benefit of public good.

Objectives and activities

CRPA was set up to support lay people holding positions of influence and responsibility and to help them relate their faith to their work, to be more informed on topical subjects and to be better equipped to carry out their roles in public service. Activities include dinners, lectures, talks, panels, conferences and small group meetings that are organised with international speakers from business, finance, politics, education, religion, arts and the media.

Through CRPA, people have been encouraged to be involved in responding to community needs, charitable ventures and educational initiatives. CRPA is ecumenical and has no political affiliation.

Achievements and performance

Over the year, CRPA held regular meetings with over 1100 people attending different events organised by the charity. Speakers have included Government Ministers, Former Ministers, MP's, Members of the House of Lords, CEO's, Senior Civil Servants, Chairs of leading companies, Archbishops, broadcasters, journalists, authors, psychologists, academics, doctors, entrepreneurs, politicians, Chief Executives of NGO's, bankers, business and other professional people. The subjects of the talks have included 'What does it mean to be human in a world of AI?'

In December 2024 an Advent Service took place with Professor Glyn Harrison MD FRCPsych speaking and over 430 people attended as well as many others joining online.

Financial Review and Reserves policy

All the Trustees are active in attending Trustee meetings and events organised by the CIO and participate in the planning of activities. The Trustees regularly assess the financial position of CRPA. They monitor the expenditure and maintain a healthy balance of reserves. All activities are always planned and budgeted within available resources.
