The Gratitude Initiative

Charity Registration Number: 1180743

Objectives and Activities

Aims of the Charity

The Gratitude Initiative exists to encourage and promote a “gratitude culture” in Britain. We believe that the practice and expression of gratitude can be a powerful vehicle for personal fulfilment and for building a harmonious society. Our mission is to embed gratitude into both personal and communal life as a means of fostering wellbeing, community cohesion, and social harmony.

Objectives for the Public Benefit

In pursuance of our charitable aims, the Trustees set the following objectives:

1. Resource Development – To prepare and disseminate video materials with workbooks addressing the role of gratitude in areas such as community cohesion, relationships, care for the environment, mental health, and personal mission. These resources are intended to equip church leaders and members to recognise and address social and personal issues within their communities.
2. Gratitude Sunday – To promote an annual church service celebrating gratitude, both to God and to individuals who have contributed to their communities. Gratitude Sunday provides a platform for collective thanksgiving, strengthens missional engagement, and fosters stronger community ties.
3. Publications – To write and publish a book that provides theological, sociological, psychological, and philosophical foundations for gratitude, supporting both individual and community transformation.
4. Speaking Engagements – To promote gratitude through contributions at conferences, churches, community gatherings, and meetings with individual leaders.
5. Thought Leadership – To provide leadership on the concept of gratitude through articles, social media content, and short video reflections.

The Trustees confirm that they have complied with their duty to have due regard to the Charity Commission’s guidance on public benefit in planning the activities of the charity.

Achievements and Performance

During the year, the Gratitude Initiative made substantial progress towards its mission:

- Speaking Engagements – Members of the team were invited to speak at churches, a Christian college, and several conferences, as well as in one-to-one meetings with leaders. These opportunities helped to raise awareness of the importance of gratitude in personal wellbeing and community life.

- Social Media Reflections – We continued to publish regular “gratitude reflections” across our social media platforms. These accessible posts encouraged followers to practice gratitude in daily life and facilitated conversations about its wider social relevance.
- Resource Development – Work progressed on a new practical resource pack for churches, including video clips and an accompanying workbook. These materials, now at the halfway stage of completion, are designed to equip churches to teach and model gratitude more effectively.
- Annual Gratitude Sunday – Our Annual Gratitude Sunday was held in collaboration with several local churches. The day provided an opportunity to celebrate community contributions, to give thanks to God, and to build stronger local connections through worship and shared activities.

Financial Review

Income and Expenditure

The charity’s net annual income for the year was £295. The principal sources of income were donations from individuals and organisations.

All income received has been applied to advance the purposes of the charity in line with the Trustees’ objectives.

Reserves Policy

The Trustees regularly review the charity’s finances against its budget and ensure that reserves are maintained at a level sufficient to meet ongoing commitments.

Financial Health

The charity remains in a stable financial position. Expenditure has been carefully managed to ensure that resources are directed to activities that directly support the charity’s objectives.

Plans for the Future

Looking ahead to 2025–26, the Trustees intend to:

- Complete and Launch Church Resource Pack – Finalise and distribute the video and workbook materials designed to help churches teach about gratitude and engage more deeply with their communities.
- Expand Gratitude Sunday – Encourage more churches across the UK to adopt Gratitude Sunday as part of their annual calendar, aiming to make it a national initiative.
- Develop Digital Reach – Increase the frequency and variety of social media content, including short videos and reflections, to engage new audiences and strengthen online presence.
- Grow Speaking Engagements – Broaden the scope of public speaking opportunities, including conferences, workshops, and community events, to promote gratitude as a transformative social practice.

- Further Publications – Explore the possibility of additional written resources, articles, and booklets that provide both academic and practical insight into gratitude culture.
- Strengthen Partnerships – Build stronger connections with churches, community groups, and like-minded organisations to extend the charity’s reach and impact.

Structure, Governance and Management

The Gratitude Initiative is a registered charity governed by its board of Trustees, who are responsible for the overall management and control of the charity.

- Trustees give their time freely, and no remuneration or expenses were paid to Trustees during the year.
- New Trustees are appointed by the existing board, following consideration of skills, experience, and alignment with the charity’s mission.

- We created and shared online resources—such as reading materials, videos, and information—on all our social media platforms to educate, inform, and inspire people to adopt and practise gratitude in their personal and social lives.
- We kept our user-friendly website up to date, providing followers, supporters, and interested individuals with more information about our charity and practical guidelines for cultivating a culture of gratitude.
- We maintained our connections with leaders and organisations with whom we had plans to organise events.
- We are in the process of developing resources on eight topics, including gratitude and community cohesion, gratitude and mental health, and gratitude and mission, to equip churches to better serve their communities.

Gratitude Initiative's mission is to share knowledge, create harmony and mutual understanding using gratitude as a framework and tool, resulting in good relations among different communities and enhance social cohesions.

'We are delighted with the progress the Gratitude Initiative has achieved despite the challenges the pandemic caused. We are optimistic that the Gratitude Initiative will gain in momentum as it is wonderfully aligned with the current conscious acts of gratitude in British culture.' Rt Revd Dr Ric Thorpe (Chair of the Gratitude Initiative Board)

- We launched the Gratitude Initiative charity nationally, using it as an opportunity to communicate the why and the how of our objectives. At our launch, we had speakers from various academic disciplines, organisations and ethnicities. We had more than 500 people attended the evening, and more than 1000 additional people saw the video afterwards. As a result of the launch, we had many invitations and opportunities opened up to share the concept of gratitude. An interview opportunity for Sainsbury's quarterly magazine was one of them.
- We organised a drawing competition for children in appreciation of the Hillingdon Hospital Staff for their outstanding dedication, sacrifice and competence during the ongoing Covid19 pandemic. More than one hundred children participated in the drawing competition. The contest happened while we were on National lockdown. Therefore, the competition helped the children participate in the nations' gratitude to the NHS staff and mentally engaged at this challenging time for many families. Thirty pictures were selected as winners and awarded.
- Produced and posted online reading materials, videos, and information that educate, inform and encourage people to embrace and practice gratitude in their personal and social life on all our social media platforms.
- We built a user-friendly website where our followers, supporters and interested people could get more information about our charity and find helpful guidelines to cultivate a gratitude culture.
- We have introduced our charity and its objectives in several public online events like Ecclesia National Conference, local network gatherings and church services.
- Held a one-day seminar on gratitude and engaged in giving ongoing training for 22 leaders on how we can use gratitude to build bridges and enhance social cohesion.
- We started preliminary conversation on a gratitude curriculum for primary school pupils with Professor Dr Giacomo Bono, a researcher at California State University. We are working to finalise by the end of 2021 our initial proposal for the education sectors in England.

- We are in the middle of a campaign to make the last Sunday of May a national Annual Gratitude Sunday for churches to use as an opportunity to encourage the good in their community by identifying individuals and groups who are serving and making a difference in their communities.
- Continued maintaining our contacts with leaders and organisations with whom we had plans to organise events, seeking when and how we can make it happen post pandemic.
- Our event at St Paul's Cathedral is now planned to take place on 14th October 2022.
