Hey Jude Annual Report 2024-2025

Similar to previous years, we have continue to provide support for those with incurable conditions. The numbers requesting support have dwindled mainly due to the fact that we have made no effort to advertise our services but have relied on word of mouth as in previous years.

Patients this year continue to be mainly those suffering from cancer but there have been an increasing number looking for advice on autoimmune diseases.

The trustees have no concerns and financially our situation remains stable.

Hey Jude Annual Report April 23-24

The charity has been ticking over at a steady rate during the year. The majority of enquiries continue to be via email asking for advice on neurological, autoimmune and cancer related problems.

Some of the patients who live in the surrounding area prefer to visit as it is easier to answer all their questions in one sitting rather than numerous emails.

The housebound patients in our area are visited at home on request for which they truly appreciate. Advice and support over the year has included patients with carcinoma of the stomach, lung cancer, pituitary tumours, skin tumours, Parkinson's disease, leukaemia, autoimmune vasculitis, unexplained urinary tract problems, and chronic fatigue syndrome.

The finances continue to show a positive balance and overall the charity remains in a healthy state.

Hey Jude Trustees Annual Report April 23

The Charity has remained active in continuing its role in providing advice to patients with cancer, neurological and autoimmune diseases.

Following the Covid lockdowns, the direction that the charity has taken is to provide most advice by written communication instead of personal visits. This is partly due to reluctance of people to visit still and partly due to the distance many patients are from the charity location.

The income is small as we do not feel the need to have a large income as our spending continues to be minimal and no one is employed by the charity. In due of this we have not needed to hold any fundholding events this year again.

In view of the above facts, the trustees are in agreement that the charity should continue in its present format.

Henry Mannings
on behalf of the trustees.

Hey Jude Charity Annual Report April 2021-April 2022

This year has seen a steady influx of patients mainly looking for advice on cancer related problems. As the charity is not advertised anywhere, it is word of mouth that continues to bring patients and their families to our doors.

The projects that had been put on hold due to the pandemic remain so due to lack of finances in the meantime. Fortunately, the charity has few outgoings so remains financially stable.

The trustees will make further decisions on the direction the charity will take in the future over the coming year.

Dr. Henry Mannings (on behalf of the trustees).

Hey Jude Charity Annual Report April 2020-April 2021

The pandemic has resulted in our inability to move forward, with a number of projects having to be postponed for the second year in a row. Our charity relies on personal communication with those in need of help and advice. Unfortunately, the fear that has been instilled into the general population has resulted in people being very reluctant to come and visit the charity.

As we have no other form of income from government sources or elsewhere, we are totally dependent on personal donations. As a result we have suffered immeasurably from the restrictions imposed over the last two years.

The projects have been put on hold till our financial situation has improved but fortunately we have no wages to pay or other outgoings at the present time.

Dr. Henry Mannings (on behalf of the trustees).
