Any one we can trust to ensure that they will help with the cause of the charity, also with this they needed to known to us personally as well to ensure that the trust and reputation was there.

Objectives and activities

Charitable purposes

The aim of the charity was to raise money in the UK in order to help orphans and less privileged people in the Kurdistan region of Iraq

Summary of the main activities in relation to these objects

We had done fundraising in the kurdish mosques around the UK to help raise the money and these were done in cash and card transaction but mainly there were card transaction

APPENDIX 1

Achievements and performance

Summary of the main achievements of the charity during the financial period

During the financial period we were told of events that had happened and that we needed to raise money for these events and we had set out messages to everyone we knew and through the mosques and by going from city to city and talking to many individuals, we had managed to ensure that the money that was needed was raised and we had passed the objectives in terms of money wise.

Throughout the period this had happened multiple times and by repeating the process that we had done the first time, each other time that we had exceed the target of money that we had set, and through this all the money was used to ensure that more people had been helped in the events back in Kurdistan Iraq

Financial review

Brief statement of the charity's policy on reserves

We had people that would set up direct debit to ensure that they were donating money every month or weekly depending on their personal preference , and through this we had money on the account at all times to ensure that if anything had happened here or there that we needed to either buy or send the money back there
