Activities

Objects: THE OBJECT[S] OF THE CIO ARE TO PROMOTE FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE PUBLIC THE IMPROVEMENT AND CONSERVATION OF THE PHYSICAL AND NATURAL ENVIRONMENT THROUGH REWILDING, PRINCIPALLY IN YORKSHIRE, BY PROVIDING SUPPORT, EDUCATION, INFORMATION AND ENCOURAGEMENT TO THE PUBLIC AND OTHER STAKEHOLDERS, INCLUDING BUT NOT LIMITED TO THOSE WITH AN INTEREST IN REWILDING. IN THIS SENSE, REWILDING IS DEFINED AS THE RESTORATION OF ECOSYSTEM FUNCTIONS TO A POINT WHERE NATURE CAN TAKE CARE OF ITSELF. IT SEEKS TO REINSTATE NATURAL PROCESSES AND, WHERE APPROPRIATE, MISSING SPECIES – ALLOWING THEM TO SHAPE THE LANDSCAPE AND THE HABITATS WITHIN. REWILDING EMBRACES THE ROLE OF PEOPLE – AND THEIR CULTURAL AND ECONOMIC CONNECTIONS TO THE LAND – WORKING WITHIN A WIDER, HEALTHY ECOSYSTEM. NOTHING IN THIS CONSTITUTION SHALL AUTHORISE AN APPLICATION OF THE PROPERTY OF THE CIO FOR THE PURPOSES WHICH ARE NOT CHARITABLE IN ACCORDANCE WITH SECTION 7 OF THE CHARITIES AND TRUSTEE INVESTMENT (SCOTLAND) ACT 2005 AND SECTION 2 OF THE CHARITIES ACT (NORTHERN IRELAND) 2008.

Activities: The Yorkshire Rewilding Network aims to bring together anyone in the region who has an interest in rewilding - to inspire one-another, share knowledge and experience, and work towards a brighter, more sustainable future for all inhabitants. We believe in a nature-first approach to land care and management.

Trustees' Annual Report for the period 1 August 2024 to 31 July 2025

Yorkshire Rewilding Network (YRN)

Charity registration number: 1190992

Objectives and Activities

The objects of the CIO are to advance biodiversity and environmental improvement through rewilding, principally in Yorkshire, by providing support, education, information and encouragement to the public and other stakeholders, including but not limited to those with an interest in rewilding. In this sense, rewilding is defined as the restoration of ecosystem functions to a point where nature can take care of itself. It seeks to reinstate natural processes and, where appropriate, missing species – allowing them to shape the landscape and the habitats within. Rewilding embraces the role of people – and their cultural and economic connections to the land – working within a wider, healthy ecosystem.

YRN carries out a range of activities to fulfil its purposes, including publishing newsletters and other relevant stories about rewilding, facilitating a discussion forum, hosting publicly available webinars and arranging small group visits to rewilding projects.

The majority of time and effort on YRN activities during the period covered by this report is voluntary. Volunteers have maintained the YRN website, written material for newsletters and articles and arranged and hosted webinars. Without such contributions, YRN would have been unable to operate.

During this period, we also engaged a paid contactor on a part time basis to deliver our Hub innovation project, funded by Rewilding Britain. This project helped us to build on rewilding momentum at local places within Yorkshire. In this period, we also delivered our summer site visit programme, winter networking days and our webinar programme.

At the end of this period in June 2025 we were successful in receiving a grant from Engie Ltd. This funding was granted to enable YRN to deliver a Rewilding Schools project and also to fund running costs.

YRN adopts an inclusive approach, centring all of activities around public benefit, ensuring that the charity operates in line with the guidance issued by the Charity Commission on public benefit.

YRN is rarely in a position to make grants. Where it does so, it refers to its purpose and ensures that any grants are aligned with that purpose.

Achievements and Performance

YRN has connected many individuals with peers and advisors, ranging from those looking for moral support or occasional grazing advice to people concerned that trees would not establish on an exposed coastal site to those wondering how to start rewilding, and many others. It has also signposted people to funding sources such as the Farming in Protected Landscapes programme.

In the corporate/public sector, as well as with landowners, YRN is also seeing opportunities for enabling positive rewilding projects. YRN is increasingly in contact with large estates who are considering nature recovery/rewilding to enable it to make further similar contributions. Increasingly, YRN is engaging at a senior level with other stakeholders such as Yorkshire Wildlife Trust, Yorkshire Water, the Yorkshire Dales National Park Authority and Nidderdale National Landscape to influence them to include rewilding in their future plans.

YRN has its own website, as well as over 1,500 newsletter subscribers, an active discussion forum and has staged a well-attended webinar programme on a range of rewilding topics with local relevance. A number of site visits have taken place and volunteering opportunities for both surveys and wild wood planting have been arranged. A presentation about rewilding has been developed, and delivered to various community groups, aiming to increase the reach and diversity of the network.

In line with the emergent, less structured nature of rewilding, YRN has deliberately avoided fixed, measurable objectives to date, instead following the energy of the network to achieve the most impact.

Financial Review

YRN's financial position at the end of its fifth year was healthy when compared to its running costs. Ongoing fundraising efforts aim to provide sufficient resources to enable part time contractors to continue to be funded.

Funds come from individual and corporate donors and from a range of small grants.

YRN aims to maintain reserves of a minimum of £2,000 which is enough to cover its committed costs and to enable an orderly wind-down of the charity if the Trustees take the decision that that is necessary.

The main risk facing YRN is its resources becoming overstretched to cope with the increasing interest in rewilding in Yorkshire and the consequent requests for its services. To manage this risk, the charity prioritises its activities to best meet its purposes and seeks to raise sufficient funds to retain appropriate resources.

Structure, Governance and Management

As a CIO, YRN has a written constitution, based on the standard proforma for a CIO.

Selection of new trustees is by existing trustees, usually from those who have already engaged with YRN so that potential new trustees know about the charity, its activities and aspirations.

YRN is wholly independent from Rewilding Britain but liaises with the national charity and with other regional networks regularly.

The objects of the CIO are to advance biodiversity and environmental improvement through rewilding, principally in Yorkshire, by providing support, education, information and encouragement to the public and other stakeholders, including but not limited to those with an interest in rewilding. In this sense, rewilding is defined as the restoration of ecosystem functions to a point where nature can take care of itself. It seeks to reinstate natural processes and, where appropriate, missing species – allowing them to shape the landscape and the habitats within. Rewilding embraces the role of people – and their cultural and economic connections to the land – working within a wider, healthy ecosystem.

YRN carries out a range of activities to fulfil its purposes, including publishing newsletters and other relevant stories about rewilding, facilitating a discussion forum, hosting publicly available webinars and arranging small group visits to rewilding projects.

The majority of time and effort on YRN activities during the period covered by this report is voluntary. Volunteers have maintained the YRN website, written material for newsletters and articles and arranged and hosted webinars. Without such contributions, YRN would have been unable to operate.

During this period, we also engaged a paid contactor on a part time basis to support the network in growing. This role helped us to follow up on the momentum built from the previous year's Rewilding Festival, to increase the number of sites included on our rewilding map and support organisation of our summer site visit programme. In this period, we have also trialled winter workdays, as complement to our summer site visit programme, to keep the network connected in person over the winter months.

At the end of this period in June 2024 we were successful in receiving a grant from Rewilding Britain. This innovation funding was granted to enable YRN to explore setting up local rewilding hubs which are networks, like YRN, but at a community level.

YRN adopts an inclusive approach, centring all of activities around public benefit, ensuring that the charity operates in line with the guidance issued by the Charity Commission on public benefit.

As a young charity, YRN is rarely in a position to make grants. Where it does so, it refers to its purpose and ensures that any grants are aligned with that purpose.

Achievements and Performance

Increasingly, YRN is engaging at a senior level with other stakeholders such as Yorkshire Wildlife Trust, Yorkshire Water, the Yorkshire Dales National Park Authority and Nidderdale NL to influence them to include rewilding in their future plans.

In line with the emergent, less structured nature of rewilding, YRN has deliberately avoided fixed, measurable objectives to date, instead following the energy of the network to achieve the most impact.

Financial Review

YRN's financial position at the end of its fourth year was healthy when compared to its running costs. Ongoing fundraising efforts aim to provide sufficient resources to enable part time contractors to continue to be funded.

Funds come from individual and corporate donors and from a range of small grants.

Trustees' Annual Report for the period 1 August 2022 to 31 July 2023

Yorkshire Rewilding Network (YRN)

Objectives and Activities

The objects of the CIO are to advance biodiversity and environmental improvement through rewilding, principally in Yorkshire, by providing support, education, information and encouragement to the public and other stakeholders, including but not limited to those with an interest in rewilding. In this sense, rewilding is defined as the restoration of ecosystem functions to a point where nature can take care of itself. It seeks to reinstate natural processes and, where appropriate, missing species – allowing them to shape the landscape and the habitats within. Rewilding embraces the role of people – and their cultural and economic connections to the land – working within a wider, healthy ecosystem.

YRN carries out a range of activities to fulfil its purposes, including publishing newsletters and other relevant stories about rewilding, facilitating a discussion forum, hosting publicly available webinars and arranging small group visits to rewilding projects. A significant addition to these ongoing activities was the staging of a Rewilding Festival in June 2023. The Festival incorporated music, storytelling, a panel discussion, family day and rewilders' gathering to increase the diversity of those who engage with us.

YRN adopts an inclusive approach, centring all of activities around public benefit, ensuring that the charity operates in line with the guidance issued by the Charity Commission on public benefit.

As a young charity, YRN is rarely in a position to make grants. Where it does so, it refers to its purpose and ensures that any grants are aligned with that purpose.

Social investment does not form a material part of YRN's activities.

The majority of the time and effort on YRN activities during the period covered by this report is voluntary. Volunteers have maintained the YRN website, written material for newsletters and articles and arranged and hosted webinars. Without such contributions, YRN would have been unable to operate. Since autumn 2021, YRN has contracted in a part time Project Officer to supplement volunteer activities and since autumn 2022 YRN has also contracted in a part time Community Engagement Officer to extend its reach across the region.

Achievements and Performance

YRN has connected many individuals with peers and advisors, ranging from those looking for moral support or occasional grazing advice to people concerned that trees would not establish on an exposed coastal site to those wondering how to start rewilding, and many others. It has also signposted people to funding sources such as the Farming in Protected Landscapes programme.

In the corporate/public sector, as well as with landowners, YRN is also seeing opportunities for enabling positive rewilding projects. YRN is increasingly in contact with large estates who are considering nature recovery/rewilding to enable it to make further similar contributions.

YRN has its own website, as well as over 1,000 newsletter subscribers, over 1,000 followers on Twitter (now X) (as at the time of this report, April 2024), an active discussion forum and has staged over 20 well-attended webinars on a range of rewilding topics with local relevance. A number of site visits have taken place and volunteering opportunities for both surveys and wild wood planting have been arranged. A presentation about rewilding has been developed, and delivered to various community groups, aiming to increase the reach and diversity of the network.

Increasingly, YRN is engaging at a senior level with other stakeholders such as Yorkshire Wildlife Trust, Yorkshire Water, the Yorkshire Dales National Park Authority and Nidderdale AONB to influence them to include rewilding in their future plans.

In line with the emergent, less structured nature of rewilding, YRN has deliberately avoided fixed, measurable objectives to date, instead following the energy of the network to achieve the most impact.

Financial Review

YRN's financial position at the end of its third year was healthy when compared to its running costs. The charity was successful in gaining a grant from Rewilding Britain's Innovation Fund, enabling it to contract in a part time Community Engagement Officer and to stage a Rewilding Festival in June 2023. Ongoing fundraising efforts aim to provide sufficient resources to enable part time contractors to continue to be funded.

Funds come from individual and corporate donors and from a range of small grants.

YRN aims to maintain reserves of a minimum of £1,000 which is a sufficient amount to cover its committed costs and to enable an orderly wind-down of the charity if the Trustees take the decision that that is necessary.

The main risk facing YRN is its resources becoming overstretched to cope with the increasing interest in rewilding in Yorkshire and the consequent requests for its services. To manage this risk, the charity prioritises its activities to best meet its purposes and seeks to raise sufficient funds to retain appropriate resources.

Structure, Governance and Management

FOR ENGLAND AND WALES

Yorkshire
Rewilding
Network

Trustees' Annual Report for the period 1 August 2021 to 31 July 2022

Yorkshire Rewilding Network (YRN)

Charity registration number: 1190992

Objectives and Activities

The objects of the CIO are to advance biodiversity and environmental improvement through rewilding, principally in Yorkshire, by providing support, education, information and encouragement to the public and other stakeholders, including but not limited to those with an interest in rewilding. In this sense, rewilding is defined as the restoration of ecosystem functions to a point where nature can take care of itself. It seeks to reinstate natural processes and, where appropriate, missing species – allowing them to shape the landscape and the habitats within. Rewilding embraces the role of people – and their cultural and economic connections to the land – working within a wider, healthy ecosystem.

YRN carries out a range of activities to fulfil its purposes, including publishing newsletters and other relevant stories about rewilding, facilitating a discussion forum, hosting publicly available webinars and arranging small group visits to rewilding projects.

YRN adopts an inclusive approach, centring all of activities around public benefit, ensuring that the charity operates in line with the guidance issued by the Charity Commission on public benefit.

As a young charity, YRN is rarely in a position to make grants. Where it does so, it refers to its purpose and ensures that any grants are aligned with that purpose.

Social investment does not form a material part of YRN's activities.

The majority of the time and effort on YRN activities during the period covered by this report is voluntary. Volunteers have maintained the YRN website, written material for newsletters and articles and arranged and hosted webinars. Without such contributions, YRN would have been unable to operate. Since autumn 2021, YRN has contracted in a part time Project Officer to supplement volunteer activities.

Achievements and Performance

YRN has connected many individuals with peers and advisors, ranging from those looking for occasional grazing advice to people concerned that trees would not establish on an exposed coastal site to those wondering how to start rewilding, and many others. It has also signposted people to funding sources such as the Farming in Protected Landscapes programme.

In the corporate/public sector, as well as with landowners, YRN is also seeing opportunities for enabling positive rewilding projects. YRN is increasingly in contact with large estates who are considering nature recovery/rewilding to enable it to make further similar contributions.

YRN has its own website, 950 newsletter subscribers, 1,450 Twitter followers (as at the time of this report, April 2023), an active discussion forum and has staged 18 well-attended webinars on a range of rewilding topics with local relevance. A number of site visits have taken place and volunteering opportunities for both surveys and wild wood planting have been arranged. A presentation about rewilding has been developed, ready to take out to schools and community groups, aiming to increase the reach and diversity of the network.

Increasingly, YRN is engaging at a senior level with other stakeholders such as Yorkshire Wildlife Trust, Yorkshire Water, the Yorkshire Dales National Park Authority and Nidderdale AONB to influence them to include rewilding in their future plans.

In line with the emergent, less structured nature of rewilding, YRN has deliberately avoided fixed, measurable objectives to date, instead following the energy of the network to achieve the most impact.

Financial Review

YRN's financial position at the end of its second year was healthy when compared to its running costs. As the charity grew, however, the need to contract in a paid part-time Project Officer to supplement the efforts of volunteers became apparent. Ongoing fundraising efforts aim to provide sufficient resources to enable a Project Officer to continue to be funded.

Funds come from individual and corporate donors and from a range of small grants.

YRN aims to maintain reserves of a minimum of £1,000 which is a sufficient amount to cover its committed costs and to enable an orderly wind-down of the charity if the Trustees take the decision that that is necessary.

The main risk facing YRN is its resources becoming overstretched to cope with the increasing interest in rewilding in Yorkshire and the consequent requests for its services. To manage this risk, the charity prioritises its activities to best meet its purposes and seeks to raise sufficient funds to retain appropriate resources.

Structure, Governance and Management

As a CIO, YRN has a written constitution, based on the standard proforma for a CIO.

Selection of new trustees is by existing trustees, usually from those who have already engaged with YRN so that potential new trustees know about the charity, its activities and aspirations.

YRN is wholly independent from Rewilding Britain, but liaises with the national charity and with other regional networks regularly.

YRN carries out a range of activities to fulfil its purposes, including publishing newsletters and other relevant stories about rewilding, hosting publicly available webinars and, where COVID restrictions and site facilities permit, arranging small group visits to rewilding projects.

YRN adopts an inclusive approach, centring all of activities around public benefit, ensuring that the charity operates in line with the guidance issued by the Charity Commission on public benefit.

As a young charity, YRN is rarely in a position to make grants. Where it does so, it refers to its purpose and ensures that any grants are aligned with that purpose.

All time and effort on YRN activities during the period covered by this report is voluntary. Volunteers have constructed the YRN website, written material for newsletters and articles and arranged and hosted webinars. Without such contributions, YRN would have been unable to operate in its initial stages.

Achievements and Performance

YRN has connected many individuals with peers and advisors, ranging from those looking for occasional grazing advice to people concerned that trees would not establish on an exposed coastal site to those wondering how to start rewilding, and many others. It has also signposted people to funding sources such as the Farming in Protected Landscapes programme.

In the corporate/public sector, as well as with landowners, YRN is also seeing opportunities for enabling positive rewilding projects. ECS/B-Corp has risen up the agenda of many businesses, and they are actively seeking solution providers who can help them embed rewilding into their ESG policies. YRN has recently connected a large manufacturing business (who had calculated they needed to plant 100,000 trees to support their commitment to carbon reduction) to the Broughton Estate who are rewilding 3,000 acres. YRN is building up details of other estates who are also supporting tree planting/rewilding to enable it to make further similar contributions.

YRN has its own website, 750 newsletter subscribers, 1,250 Twitter followers (as at the time of this report, April 2022), an active discussion forum and has staged twelve well-attended webinars on a range of rewilding topics with local relevance. A small number of site visits between members of its Smallholder Cluster Group have taken place when Covid restrictions have allowed and volunteering opportunities for both surveys and wild wood planting have been arranged. A presentation about rewilding is in development, ready to take out to schools and community groups, aiming to increase the reach and diversity of the network.

Increasingly, YRN is engaging at a senior level with other stakeholders such as Yorkshire Wildlife Trust, Yorkshire Water, the Yorkshire Dales National Park Authority and Nidderdale AONB to influence them to include rewilding in their future plans.

In line with the emergent, less structured nature of rewilding, YRN deliberately avoided fixed, measurable objectives in its first year, instead following the energy of the network to achieve the most impact.
