

ANNUAL REPORT: Bryan's Quest

2022 – 2023

Two undergraduates from Falmouth University undertook short internships with Bryans Quest. One intern completed video editing tasks and the other intern focused on narration and audio description. Their work resulted in a series of short videos that will be used to demonstrate and encourage blind people to grow plants and to enjoy a vast range of sensory stimulations, as well as having the satisfaction of germinating seeds, monitoring growth and hopefully eating some nutritious veg and fruit.

Due to some significant challenges in the personal lives of each of our trustees, the ambitious plans for Bryans Quest, in 2023, have been delayed.

The website continues to be maintained and developed to encourage blind and partially sighted people to be given the same opportunities to enjoy and learn about the natural world, as can be experienced by sighted people.

A student of nature filming, shot and edited a video to demonstrate how a blind person negotiates the Cornwall coastal path, independently.

We continue to encourage creative people to make scale models and donate them to Bryan's quest.
