THE CHAIR'S FOREWORD

Most people overestimate what they can get done in a year – but underestimate what they can get done in ten years.

Recovery is a long process – any truly transformational journey is. What I've learned from my involvement with The People's Recovery Project, and from my professional work in collective and individual transformation, is that people who successfully change their lives are good at looking long-term and short-term simultaneously. They have the courage to look deep into the future and imagine a different life a decade from now, and they have the spark and energy and humility to take the step in front of them, day by day, hour by hour, minute by minute.

Ed and Nathan started this project with transformational goals and a huge commitment to long term transformation. This report shows that they have also taken huge steps in this massively important first fully operational year. They have surpassed my expectations from a year ago of what might have been possible. They have raised seriously significant funds, built robust community practices and places in both the preparatory and aftercare phases of recovery and they have learned valuable lessons about how treatment can work for those experiencing homelessness. All this alongside making potent partnerships in the academic, public and medical sectors.

They have surprised themselves, I think, by the level of their success. And this has raised my personal expectations of what will be possible over the next few years.

I got involved with The People's Recovery Project not only because I believe in what Ed and Nathan are setting out to achieve (to make detox and rehab treatment a viable and sustainable pathway for people experiencing homelessness) but because I believe in how they wanted to do it.

They asked me to be chair of the board of trustees due to my background in organisational development, to help them keep the structures and practices they employ always reflective of their values and their goals for themselves, their colleagues, and the people they exist to serve. This, for me, is as close as I think it is possible to get in this moment to real 'systems change' in action: the system changes when it becomes undeniably clear that a new system has emerged which makes the old one obsolete. It is not always glamorous, or slick or fully formed, but this new way of being around homelessness and addiction embraces the messy-wholeness of all the humans involved. Ed and Nathan have collaborated with incredible people working in creaking systems and somehow worked out ways of doing things differently. This is, I believe, the work of our age.

So, at the end of this financial year, let us look forward not only to 2025, but to 2035, and allow ourselves to imagine what a world would look like if The People's Recovery Project continues to succeed as they have this year, year-on-year, every year. It is a vision that gives us a glimpse of a society that actually works – that is mature enough to relate to the most vulnerable amongst us with compassion, complexity-consciousness, and practical support. I'm looking forward to it.

David Brown (Chair of the Board of Trustees)

REFLECTIONS OF A COMMUNITY MEMBER

I have a history of over 20 years using illicit substances and I could not find a way out of homelessness and addiction. In 2015 when I was living on the streets I met one of the co-founders of The People's Recovery Project and at this point my journey towards recovery started. It was not easy but I managed to get myself into residential rehab and I am now seven years clean. At the beginning of last year I was able to reconnect with the person who supported me on the streets and it quickly became clear that I wanted to contribute to the development of The People's Recovery Project.

Looking back on my experience of homelessness and addiction I can now see that there exist so many barriers that prevent people like me from ever having the opportunity to access treatment and recovery. When someone is in this situation and decides they are ready to change you have a really short window to intervene. This is not the point where hurdles should be placed in front of someone. Too often people who have already experienced so much rejection in their lives are faced with yet more rejection - and this is not helping people to recover.

Over the last year I feel that I have been a crucial part of The People's Recovery Project, and not only am I able to use my experiences to support other people who are struggling but I have also realised how beneficial being part of this organisation is to me. When I was in the midst of chaos my family suffered a lot. In the last 7 years they have seen my journey of recovery but I do not think they could visualise the work that I have been doing over the last year. My recent experience speaking at the Pathway UK health inclusion conference meant that I was able to share with my family the work that I am undertaking and make them proud.

I am looking forward to being involved with The People's Recovery Project over the next year and am confident that we can achieve the goals that we are setting out to achieve, and this is due to the authenticity of the people within this organisation. Everyone involved in the project is so passionate about what we are doing, and we seek to offer solutions, not get stuck in the same old problems. I believe that this organisation will reach as far as it wants to, and that we will be able to support lots of people who would otherwise not have opportunities to access treatment and recovery. By helping people in addiction your reach is huge - it goes far beyond the individual you're working with - but impacts on their family and whole community as well.

My experience is not something for me to keep, and I want to use it to be able to give back to my community and support people who are in similar situations that I once found myself in. With The People's Recovery Project I have found a place where this is possible.

STATEMENT FROM THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Objects of the Charity

The People's Recovery Project achieved charitable status in June 2022. The charity aims to create additional, alternative and faster routes out of homelessness and into recovery for people experiencing homelessness and addiction in order to see more people who have experienced homelessness and addiction achieve fulfilling lives in sustained recovery.

Main Activities for the benefit of the public in the Period

The trustees have read the guidance issued by the Charity Commission on public benefit and will deliver the charity's projects within the guidance.

Main Achievements of the Charity in the Period

The end of the financial year brings an important milestone for The People's Recovery Project as it represents exactly one year since our co-founders started working full time progressing this new organisation. In 2022-23 a team of executive volunteers put in place the foundations of a new organisation which achieved charitable status on 9th June 2022. Throughout 2022-23 significant progress was made but it soon became clear that without a commitment to working solely on The People's Recovery Project, our team of executive volunteers had taken the organisation as far as it could go. The decision to leave their jobs at the end of last financial year was one that brought significant personal risk to our co-founders, but one that felt like the correct decision as they sought to continue to develop the organisation.

We set out to create an organisation that has at its core a commitment to kindness, compassion and the promotion of positive wellbeing. Staying true to these values is integral to our organisational journey as we seek to build a community that is driven by shared purpose, connection and belonging. With these core values at the heart of everything we do we hope that we can be in the best possible position to support people who are beginning to think about new ways of living following traumatic experiences of long term homelessness and addiction. Given the complex nature of the environment that we are operating in there will undoubtedly be significant challenges and setbacks that we have to overcome, but by staying true to our values we aspire to create the conditions where people are able to make decisions to undertake transformational journeys away from the streets: making recovery both achievable and sustainable.

The last year has been an exceptional journey for our organisation as we have developed all areas of our operation and work. There has been so much learning as we have created much of the infrastructure that is required to operate a small sized charity, putting in place foundations that mean that as we continue to test the feasibility of the work we are undertaking we can also be responsive and scale up our operation to have wider impact for the community we are supporting. In our first year we have facilitated 36 aftercare community groups, a pilot project of 20 community prep groups and we have supported 2 people to access residential detox. We have developed employment opportunities for our community members and have undertaken a data analysis of our existing community members as we progress towards establishing a new evidence base. These core strands of work are co-designed with our community of individuals with lived experience who are living in sustained recovery. It is this experience and knowledge that is crucial to building an organisation that can support individuals through difficult transitions: a community of individuals with lived experience who continue to inspire our organisational approach and who act as beacons of hope for others who are considering embarking on transformational journeys of recovery away from the streets and the chaos of addiction.

Looking to the future

We have achieved more than we expected to in the last year and that is because we have seen first hand the potential impact that the work we are undertaking can achieve. Through building our community we have created the foundations that can elicit positive change in the people we are seeking to support. Over the next few months it is our ambition to reach out to our networks to start to promote more widely the work that we are undertaking and ensure that we are meeting more people who are interested in exploring the potential opportunity from treatment and recovery. We know that there are many people currently on the streets and in insecure accommodation who are trapped in cycles of addiction and homelessness. Among them are so many people with huge potential who, given the opportunity, can become productive members of society, and through a process of individual healing can contribute to wider societal recovery. We cannot compromise on our approach, which is rooted in community, which promotes the development of shared purpose, connection and belonging, as we seek to make recovery from homelessness and addiction achievable and sustainable.

Recruitment and Appointment of Trustees

Recruitment and appointment of trustees is done by the charity. Gaps in experience and expertise will be identified and a search for trustees from our own networks will be carried out. As written in the constitution, trustees of the charity should be:

INDEPENDENT EXAMINER'S REPORT

Independent examiner's report to the trustees of The People's Recovery Project. I report on the financial statements of the charity for the year ended 31 March 2024, which comprise the statement of Financial Activities, the Balance Sheet and the related notes.

Respective responsibilities of Trustees and examiner

The charity's trustees are responsible for the preparation of the accounts in accordance with the Charities Act 2011 ('the Act'). The Charity's trustees consider that an audit is not required for this year under section 144 of the Act and that an independent examination is needed.

It is my responsibility to examine the accounts under section 145 of the Charities Act, follow the applicable Directions given by the Charity Commission under section 145(5)(b) of the Act, and state whether particular matters have come to my attention.

Basis of independent examiner's report

My examination was carried out in accordance with the general Directions given by the Charity Commission. An examination includes a review of the accounting records kept by the charity and a comparison of the accounts presented with those records. It also includes consideration of any unusual items or disclosures in the accounts, and seeking explanations from the trustees concerning any such matters. The procedures undertaken do not provide all the evidence that would be required in an audit and consequently no opinion is given as to whether the accounts present a 'true and fair view' and the report is limited to those matters set out in the statement below.

Independent examiner's statement

Where the charity's gross income exceeded £250,000 I am qualified to undertake the examination because I am a registered member of the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants which is one of the listed bodies.

(1) In connection with my examination, no material matters have come to my attention which give me cause to believe that, in any material respect:

- the accounting records were not kept in accordance with section 130 of the Charities Act; or
- the accounts did not accord with the accounting records; or
- the accounts did not comply with the applicable requirements concerning the form and content of the accounts set out in the Charities (Accounts and Report) Regulation 2008 other than any requirement that the accounts give a 'true and fair' view which is not a matter considered as part of independent examination.

(2) I have no concerns and have come across no other matters in connection with the examination to which attention should be drawn in this report in order to enable a proper understanding of the accounts to be reached.

11. STAFF COSTS AND NUMBERS

The Charity paid 5 employees in the year. No members of staff received emoluments of over £60,000. Payments were made on a self-employed basis to 2 members of staff until transferring onto PAYE in September 2023. 3 community members were paid as sessional workers where budgets allowed.

12. TRUSTEES AND RELATED PARTIES

During the financial year, no payments were made to the Trustees or any persons connected with them. No other material transaction took place between the organisation or any person connected with them.

13. RISK ASSESSMENT

The Trustees actively review the major risks which the charity faces on a regular basis and believe that maintaining the free reserves stated, combined with the annual review of the controls over key financial systems carried out on an annual basis will provide sufficient resources in the event of adverse conditions. The Trustees have also examined other operational and business risks which they face and confirm that they have established systems to mitigate the significant risks.

14. RESERVES POLICY

The Trustees have considered the level of reserves they wish to retain, appropriate to the charity's needs. This is based on the charity's size and the level of financial commitments held. The Trustees aim to ensure the charity will be able to continue to fulfil its charitable objectives even if there is a temporary shortfall in income or unexpected expenditure. The directors will endeavour not to set aside funds unnecessarily.

15. PUBLIC BENEFIT

The Charity acknowledges its requirement to demonstrate clearly that it must have charitable purposes or 'aims' that are for the public benefit. Details of how the charity has achieved this are provided in the Trustees report. The Trustees confirm that they have paid due regard to the Charity Commission guidance on public benefit before deciding what activities the charity should undertake.
