HISTORY OF PARLIAMENT TRUST

STRUCTURE, GOVERNANCE AND MANAGEMENT

Structure and governance

1. The History of Parliament Trust was established by a Declaration of Trust made on 31 December 1940, varied by an Order of the Chancery Division of the High Court made on 12 March 1956 and by Schemes made by the Secretary of State for Education and Science on 6 January 1967 and 27 October 1971 and the Charity Commissioners on 24 July 1996 with a charity number 306034. The Scheme made by the Charity Commissioners in 1996 provides that the body of Trustees should comprise four ex officio Trustees and such number of Co-opted Trustees as the Trustees may think fit; provided that the total number of Trustees shall not be less than five nor more than fifteen. The ex officio Trustees are as follows (provided that they are willing to act in this capacity): the Chairman of Committees in the House of Lords (now usually known as the Senior Deputy Speaker), the Chairman of Ways and Means in the House of Commons, and the Clerk Assistant in the House of Commons. The Clerk of the Parliaments is also an ex officio Trustee: he has delegated these responsibilities to the Librarian in the House of Lords. Co-opted Trustees are appointed by a resolution of the Trustees. The Trustees and their Secretary are listed on p. 3. The Trustees appoint an Editorial Board of distinguished scholars to advise them on academic policy and staff appointments. The members of the Board during the year are listed on p. 4. The staff of the Trust are headed by its Director, who is responsible for directing the management and administration of the History, has overall responsibility for supervising the research and editorial work, and also acts as secretary to the Editorial Board. The Trust also appoints an Executive Committee, whose function is to prepare an agenda for the Trustees' quarterly meetings and take such decisions as are needed in the period between those meetings.
2. During 2022/23, the Trustees applied to the Charity Commission for the creation of a new Charitable Incorporated Organisation, with the title of the History of Parliament Trust. The Charity Commission accepted the application, and the new Trust (CIO) was registered in February 2023, with Charity Number 1202089. The assets, liabilities and operations of the former Trust were transferred to the new CIO, HPT on 31 August 2023. The 1940 History of Parliament Trust ceased operations following the deed of transfer to the new Trust (CIO).
3. The Trust receives a grant in aid, the terms of which were announced to both Houses of Parliament on 20 February 1951 and to the House of Commons on 27 July 1967. In 2024-25 the Trust received 64% (normally 70%) of its grant in aid from the House of Commons Administration Estimate; the remaining 36% (normally 30%) was received from the House of Lords Estimate. The change in percentage shares in 2024-25 was due to the early receipt of the quarter 1 House of Commons grant in the last few days of 2023/24. A Financial Memorandum agreed between the Trustees and the authorities of both Houses sets out the aims and objectives of the History of Parliament Trust and the administrative and financial arrangements for its activities, including the conditions for the grant in aid. The grant in aid is approved annually by the Commissions of both Houses, with scrutiny also by the respective Finance Committees. The Trust's own Finance Committee brings together the Treasurer and Director with senior finance officials of both Houses and is the primary forum for the discussion of the Trust's grant in aid.
4. The trustees have examined the major risks the Trust faces. It has in place systems to monitor and control those risks to mitigate any impact they may have on the History in the future. It will continue to review its assessment of these risks as part of its annual Corporate Planning process.

Objectives and activities

5. The History of Parliament Trust is a major academic project to create a scholarly reference work describing the members, constituencies and activities of the Parliament of England and the United Kingdom. The volumes either published or in preparation cover the House of Commons from 1386 to 1868 and the House of Lords from 1558 to 1832. They are widely regarded as an unparalleled source for British political, social and local history. Progress to date is presented in table 1 and 2 below.

6. The original charitable objective for the 1940 History of Parliament Trust was the compilation of a literary and historical work know as 'The History of Parliament'. The revised charitable objectives of the Charitable Incorporated Organisation (CIO) are as follows:

To advance the education of the public in general on the subject of the History of Parliament through:

- Scholarly and historical research on the Parliament of the United Kingdom and its predecessors, those who have been members of these bodies, parliamentary constituencies and elections, and parliamentary politics and institutions in general.
 - Disseminating and interpreting the results of this research to the widest possible audience.
 - The encouragement of research by others on the History of Parliament and Parliamentary institutions.
 - The promotion of related scholarly and educational activities.
7. The volumes on the House of Commons consist of detailed studies of elections and electoral politics in each constituency, and of closely researched accounts of the lives of everyone who was elected to Parliament in the period. The volumes on the House of Lords provide political biographies of peers. In addition, the volumes contain surveys drawing out the themes and discoveries of the research and adding information on the operation of Parliament as an institution.
8. The History has now published over 27,000 biographies and 3,200 constituency surveys in fourteen sets of volumes (65 volumes in all). They deal with the House of Commons 1386-1421 (1992), 1422-1461 (2020), 1509-1558 (1982), 1558-1603 (1981), 1604-29 (2010), 1640-1660 (2023), 1660-1690 (1983), 1690-1715 (2002), 1715-1754 (1970), 1754-1790 (1964), 1790-1820(1986) and 1820-32 (2009); and the House of Lords 1604-1629 (2021) and 1660-1715 (2016). All of the House of Commons articles published up and including to 2010 are now available on www.historyofparliamentonline.org. The History's staff of professional historians is currently researching the House of Commons in the periods 1461-1504 and 1832-1868, and the House of Lords in the period 1558-1603, 1640-1660 and 1715-1790.

9. As well as the biographies and constituency surveys, the History undertakes an oral history project designed to record long interviews with former Members of Parliament. These are deposited in the British Library and are made available to researchers.
10. Since 1995, the History has been funded principally by the two Houses of Parliament. It is based close to its original host, the Institute of Historical Research, University of London. It was founded before the Second World War, the brainchild of Josiah Wedgwood MP, a Labour parliamentarian and minister, and revived after the war when a number of the greatest British historians of the day, including Sir Lewis Namier, Sir Frank Stenton and Sir John Neale, were involved in its re-establishment. The project is governed by its Trustees, who are mainly Members and Officers of both Houses of Parliament. The quality of the project's research and writing is monitored by an Editorial Board of historians. For further details see the History's website at www.historyofparliamentonline.org.
11. The History's objectives and its performance against previous objectives are set out in its annual plan. An annual plan was last approved by the Trustees in July 2024 and an updated plan was presented and approved Trustees in October 2025. Once the website has been re-launched the annual plan will be published online.
12. The Trust strives to ensure that the impact of its activities on the environment, consumers, employees, communities, stakeholders and all other members of the public sphere is taken into account at all times.
13. Trustees are provided with a set of documents concerning the charity and their responsibilities as Trustees. These are reviewed and updated with each appointment and as necessary. The Director provides additional induction material relating to current issues. New Trustees are offered more information through briefings by the Director and Secretary and are invited to visit the History. Trustees are required to sign a declaration indicating their understanding of their responsibilities as Trustees.

HISTORY OF PARLIAMENT TRUST

Review of achievements and performance in the year 2024-25

OVERVIEW

- 1. During the year, the History added a further 1 million words of scholarly research to the project, including almost 300 biographies and 24 constituency histories. In addition, the History has recorded a further 129 hours of life histories of former parliamentarians, and completed 17 interviews. A detailed summary of the History’s work across scholarly research, public engagement and academic engagement is below. The Trust website development project continued to progress and is almost completed. A new fundraising strategy was developed.
- 2. Alongside the continued publication of scholarly research, the HPT has been progressing plans to review its ways of working and the associated premises required to deliver those plans After 20 years based in Bloomsbury Square, the HPT has moved to a smaller building with reduced accommodation costs as a result. In 2024-25, the financial memorandum was revised following the conversion to the CIO.
- 3. Following the July 2024 general election, the HPT has recruited several new trustees (see details on p.3).

The House of Commons 1461-1504

5. The project, begun in 2020 in succession to the 1422-61 Commons project, and expected to be completed in around 2037, is the largest of the History's current projects. In its completed form it is expected to comprise some 1334 biographical articles and 148 constituency surveys. It is concerned with the membership of the House of Commons during the reigns of Edward IV, Edward V, Richard III and Henry VII. This was a period characterised by political instability and repeated usurpations of the throne (1461, 1470, 1483, 1485). Moreover, it was also a crucial period in terms of its parliamentary history, during which we first see in operation many elements of parliamentary procedure familiar from the present day. Conversely, the project has to contend with two major problems, the near complete loss of the parliamentary election returns for the reign of Henry VII and half of that of Edward IV, and the decline of both narrative sources and large parts of the public records from the later 1460s. As a result, it is often difficult to establish more than an outline of the biographies of many local MPs.

Summary Progress Table for 24-25:

Total number of Biographies Articles:	67
Total number of Constituency Articles (where applicable):	7
Total number of revised articles (where applicable):	11
Total Number of Words Written:	139,663

Research highlights:

6. Dr. Mackman's work on the quorum of the commissions of the peace has led to the discovery of a number of hitherto unknown commissions of the peace. Among the striking discoveries in ongoing work on the pardon rolls for the period was a pardon granted by Richard III to his sworn enemy John Morton, later archbishop of Canterbury, in the days before the battle of Bosworth.

Biographies completed by the team include

7. Sir Thomas Burgh: MP for Lincolnshire 1463, 1467, 1478. One of the most prominent figures of the Yorkist regime, a knight for the King's body and Edward IV's Master of the Horse, Burgh navigated the various military and political difficulties of the period, serving three monarchs and eventually reconciling himself to the new Tudor monarchy and being elevated to the peerage. From a relatively humble but well-connected background, he established himself as the chief Yorkist agent in Lincolnshire, building up a significant landed base and a spectacular (and still extant) new house at Gainsborough, and being involved in most of the key events of the Yorkist and early-Tudor period. While much of his parliamentary career is probably obscured by the lack of evidence, research for this biography has now established that he almost certainly sat in the 1463 Parliament, probably for Lincolnshire. 11,369 words.
8. Sir Hugh Peshale: he was heir to one of the principal gentry families of Staffordshire, although he did not live to inherit. He advanced himself to the ranks of the knights of King's body by fighting for Henry VII at Bosworth. Yet, despite his rank, he failed to secure a valid election for the borough of Stafford, a seat for which he was singularly over-qualified, to the Parliament of 1487. Two lesser men, both servants of the county sheriff, Sir Henry Willoughby, were returned in his stead. There can be no doubt that Willoughby rather than the borough electors were responsible for his exclusion, but there is no evidence to reveal Willoughby's motives. As he too was a member of the new King's household, he might have been expected to facilitate Peshale's election. 2,117 words.

9. John Sturgeon: he came from a Devon family, but Sturgeon's father had brought the family to Hertfordshire where this MP also made his home. From an early date a member of Edward IV's household, Sturgeon served first as clerk of the ordnance and then as Master of the ordnance during Edward's campaigns in France. He was subsequently appointed to the national office of Master of the ordnance, but dismissed in 1482. His final years were largely spent on his private affairs. MP Hertfordshire 1472, 1478. 2,386 words.

Constituency articles completed by the section include:

10. Bridgnorth: a Shropshire borough that retained representation within the limits of its political hinterland. Several of its MPs were journeymen lawyers from the minor gentry families from the surrounding villis. The most notable election came in 1461 when Humphrey Blount, a Yorkist disqualified from election for the county as its sheriff, was admitted to the borough's freedom and immediately returned to Parliament. 2,942 words.
11. Derby: throughout this period, the town's representation was dominated by its residents. Only the election of the non-townsmen, Roger Wilkinson, in 1472 is anomalous. He was a tenant of the duchy of Lancaster manor of Wirksworth, about 14 miles north of the town, and his return reveals something of the external forces that occasionally influenced the town's elections. That manor was part of the great honour of Tutbury, then in the hands of George, duke of Clarence, but locally administered by its steward, the Derbyshire peer, Walter Blount Lord Mountjoy. This connexion with the powerful Blount family is the only plausible explanation for Wilkinson's election for a borough with which he had no other documented connexion. The return of Mountjoy's younger son, James Blount, to the same Parliament for the county, demonstrates the family's interest in these elections. Furthermore, during the 1472 Parliament, the relationship between the honour of Tutbury, the Blounts and the town's representation was made explicit: on 12 Dec. 1474 William, Lord Hastings, who had succeeded Mountjoy as steward, entered an indenture with James, that 'where the town of Derby hath granted and ordained the said lord to have the rule and governance of the said town', James was to have the rule in his absence. 1,583 words.

The House of Lords 1559-1601

12. Established on 1 January 2020, the section consists of three highly experienced full time members of staff (an editor, an assistant editor and a research fellow). It is on course to complete in first draft form all 246 biographical entries by mid-November 2025 and to be ready for publication at the end of June 2027. The completed volumes, consisting of both biographies and an Introductory Survey, will be accompanied on the History of Parliament's website by a unique database that records in detail all the known primary sources for the Elizabethan House of Lords.

Summary Progress Table for 24-25:

Total number of Biographies Articles:	45
Total Number of Words Written:	152,089

Research Highlights:

13. Entries on three major figures were drafted in the course of the last year: Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester, Elizabeth's favourite and paramour; John Aylmer, bishop of London 1577-94 and de facto archbishop of Canterbury following the suspension of Archbishop Grindal; and Richard Bancroft, bishop of London 1597-1604, Archbishop Whitgift's right hand man. The entry on Leicester, for whom there is still no satisfactory biography beyond his entry in the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography, examines in detail the earl's parliamentary influence, not only in the Commons but also in the Lords. The entries on Aylmer and Bancroft also fill large biographical holes. Students of Bancroft will undoubtedly find particularly interesting the latter's fruitless diplomatic mission to Emden in 1600, which Church historians, focussed on Bancroft's ecclesiastical career, have largely ignored.
14. Among the smaller fry whose entries have been drafted over the last year is William Grey, 13th Baron Grey of Wilton, who was captured on the fall of Calais in 1558 and yet nevertheless attended the early stages of the 1559 Parliament, the only peer ever known to have sat in the upper House while a prisoner of war. Another notable entry on a minor figure is that of William West, 1st Lord De La Warr, who was admitted to the peerage in 1570 under circumstances which hitherto were unclear.

The House of Lords 1640-1660

15. The project began in 2022 in succession to the 1640-60 Commons section and is expected to conclude in around 2029. When completed it will comprise the biographies of some 255 peers and bishops and an accompanying survey volume. The project covers arguably the most dramatic and significant decade in early modern British history – the 1640s; the Lords abolition by the Commons in 1649 meant that the House was in abeyance between then and the Restoration in 1660. As our work is beginning to reveal, peers featured prominently in the bicameral factions that took centre-stage at Westminster after 1640 and that constituted England's first ever national political parties. As royal counsellors and party politicians they helped master-mind policy and reform by both king and Parliament, and they were intimately involved in trying to reach a settlement within Charles I's war-torn kingdoms. Perhaps most striking of all was their high-profile participation in the modern (by contemporary standards) 'fiscal-military' state that Parliament constructed to defeat the king. The Lords sat more or less continuously during the period 1640-48 and their business expanded hugely, becoming more politically-charged and controversial as the decade progressed. There was a marked growth in the House's judicial business, and this, along with peers' integral role in Parliament's burgeoning – and highly authoritarian – war-state, provoked a powerful reaction among radicals against the peerage and its constitutional role. Investigating these developments will take the project to the heart of popular as well as parliamentary politics in the English Revolution. The editor is Dr. David Scott, the assistant-editor is Dr. Patrick Little, and the section's newly-appointed research fellow is Dr. Alex Beeton.

Summary Progress Table for 2024-25:

Total number of Biographies:	43
Total Number of Words Written:	218,767

Research Highlights:

16. Dr. Beeton was awarded the Pollard Prize for the best paper delivered by an early-career researcher at an Institute of Historical Research seminar series, and he appeared on Radio 4's 'Today in Parliament' in December. The section has written the biographies of several major figures in 2024-5 – most notably, that of William Fiennes, 1st Viscount Saye and Sele, the éminence grise of the parliamentarian peers during the civil war. At approximately 32,000 words this will probably be the largest biography of the project.

Biographies completed include:

17. Henry Bouchier, 5th earl of BATH. A man with a very varied and colourful career, Bouchier began life as an academic in Ireland, and succeeded to the earldom unexpectedly, aged 50, in 1637. He was an antiquarian with a wide range of friends, notably Archbishop Ussher, and his circle was further widened by a successful marriage with the sister of the earl of Westmorland. He was a very active member in the first year of the Long Parliament, working with the junto in the trial of Strafford, but then gradually becoming disillusioned with attacks on royal authority and above all the Church. He sided with the king in 1642, but was lukewarm in his allegiances, and his career was somewhat checkered, as he was accused of lack of commitment and even conniving with the enemy. He died in 1654. (13,620 words)
18. Francis Russell, 4th earl of BEDFORD. Long-regarded as one of the most important peers before his death in May 1641, Bedford is revealed in this biography to be a more equivocal figure, whose attempts to broker a settlement between the king and his critics were hampered by ill-health and bereavement, as well as by bad-faith on both sides of the political divide. His scheme had already failed by the time of his premature death, of small pox, a few days before the execution of the earl of Strafford. (9,246 words)
19. Mildmay Fane, 2nd earl of WESTMORLAND. Fane's peerage and his extensive estates in Kent and Northamptonshire should have made him a major political player in the 1640s. Instead, 'seduced by love of the Muses', he devoted much of his time to literary pursuits, and during a 40 year period he would write some 900 (mostly execrable) poems in English and Latin and at least eight plays and 'entertainments'. He was a keen angler, and some of his better poetry recounted epic fishing trips. A royalist at the outbreak of civil war, he was quickly captured and in 1644 made his peace with Parliament. Although labelled a 'Presbyterian' by English literature scholars, he was anything but and remained deeply committed to the Church of England and the monarchy. He lived to see the Restoration and spent his final years writing against and harassing that 'cursed sect' of puritans. (4,964 words).
20. George Goring, 1st Baron GORING OF HURSTPIERPOINT. Goring excelled in the courtly arts of wit, easy manners and ingratiating himself with his royal masters and their favourites. So successful was he in wringing pensions and sinecures from the early Stuart kings or in selling himself as a manager of royal revenues that he acquired the sobriquet of 'captain projector'. He sided with the king during the first civil war and served as

Charles's ambassador to France in 1644. Appointed general of Kent's royalist rebels during the second civil war, he spent much of his time reading romances. Following his inevitable defeat and capture he only narrowly escaped execution. The restored monarchy's rejection in 1662 of his bid to recover the great farm of customs reportedly broke his heart and certainly his credit, and he died shortly afterwards, leaving massive debts. (7,559 words)

21. John Williams, bishop of LINCOLN. A scholar by inclination and a Calvinist theologically, Williams became most important bishop in the Lords before the civil war. His incarceration in the Tower of London at the hands of Archbishop Laud during the 1630s gave him great influence with the king's opponents after his release in November 1640, but his attempts to bring moderate reform to the Church of England were not successful, and he ended 1641 as a strong supporter of the king – a position that led to his promotion to the archbishopric of York and, after a ill-judged attempt to overawe the Lords, his return to the Tower. During the civil wars he held Conwy Castle for the king. (14,098 words)

The House of Lords 1715-1790

22. The project commenced formally in January 2018, following publication of the Lords 1660-1715 in 2016, and is set to complete in approximately 2034. During the financial year there were 3 full-time members of staff: the editor is Dr Robin Eagles, and there were two senior research fellows, Dr Stuart Handley and Dr Charles Littleton, though Dr Handley retired in May 2025. The project covers a key period in the history of the Lords, which is ripe for reappraisal and includes some of the most significant political players of the 18th century, including Sir Robert Walpole (in the Lords as earl of Orford), William Pitt the elder (earl of Chatham) and the duke of Newcastle. There are several peers famed for the wrong reasons: Earl Ferrers, the last peer hanged for murder, and Lord Hervey, the author of famously caustic memoirs of the reign of George II. During the period, the Lords also sat in trial on the duchess of Kingston, who was convicted of bigamy. The Lords considered issues relating to reform of the House, notably in 1719 when bills were introduced to abolish the anomalous Scottish representative peers, replacing them with 25 hereditaries, and freeze the size of the peerage. On several occasions, the Lords was the chosen battleground for significant political crises to be played out, notably over the 1783 East India bill, which precipitated the fall of the Fox-North coalition.

Summary Progress Table for 24-25:

Total number of Biographies Articles:	69
Total Number of Words Written:	199,872

Research Highlights:

23. Members of the section tackled several major figures in the period, most significantly, Dr Handley's article on William Pulteney, earl of Bath, a key figure in the opposition to Sir Robert Walpole, and briefly appointed to the head of the treasury himself.

Biographies completed by the section include:

24. Hugh Boscawen, 2nd Viscount Falmouth (1707-1782): From a powerful Cornish family, Boscawen lost his seat in the Commons in 1734, but succeeded his father the following year. In the Lords, he opposed Walpole and his electoral role in Cornwall was fundamental to the decline in Walpole's majority in the 1741 general election. Following Walpole's fall he moved to support the Court, his electoral power remaining his main attraction to leaders such as Henry Pelham, Newcastle and North. (5,089 words)
25. James Brydges, duke of Chandos (1674-1744): 'Princely Chandos' was notorious for the vast fortune he had made as paymaster general, 1705-13, with which he built his lavish 'palace' of Cannons. During the Whig Schism he was approached to take up leadership of the Treasury, as a moderate Tory in a 'broad-bottomed' ministry. He lost heavily in the South Sea Bubble and, having to retrench his spending, largely retired from public life after 1731, regularly assigning his proxy to Walpole's son-in-law. (6,287 words)
26. Thomas Howard, 3rd earl of Effingham (1747-91): Effingham resigned his military commission in May 1775 in a public gesture of refusal to fight the American colonists. Over the next few years, he was a key figure in the opposition to the North ministry: as a speaker and protester, and particularly as a teller. After the fall of the North ministry he took office, under the marquess of Rockingham as treasurer of the household, and then under William Pitt, first as Master of the Mint, and then as governor of Jamaica. (7,047 words)
27. Thomas Pitt, Baron Camelford (1737-1793): Camelford was related to some of the most prominent politicians of the period, including two Prime Ministers: Pitt the Elder and George Grenville. He was much closer to the latter and it was during Grenville's administration that he held office as a lord of the admiralty. On occasion a lively speaker (both in the Commons and the Lords), periods of fierce activity were interspersed with long intervals when he avoided politics. He played a key role around the fall of the earl of Shelburne as a conduit between the king and other potential ministers and was even earmarked for a leading role himself. He declined, however, and instead was the first of his cousin Pitt the Younger's promotions to the Lords. (5,123 words)
28. William Pulteney, earl of Bath (1684-1764): Prior to his elevation to the Lords, Bath's career had been defined by his opposition to Sir Robert Walpole. Following the earl of Wilmington's death in 1743 he attempted to secure the post of first lord of the Treasury, losing out to Henry Pelham. He tried again in 1746, when most of the Cabinet resigned. Bath lost his position in the Cabinet and henceforth played a peripheral role in national politics. The accession of George III saw a revival of his influence and the consolidation of his plans for a political dynasty in Shropshire, building on the estates he had acquired from the Newport family. (11,194 words)
29. Laurence Shirley, 4th Earl Ferrers (1720-1760): Ferrers was little known outside of his locality beyond occasional anecdotes suggesting that he was a Jacobite sympathizer. He came to much wider attention over his ill-treatment of his countess, the breakdown of their marriage and his subsequent killing of his estate steward. He was tried for murder before the Lords in Westminster Hall and, in spite of trying to plead insanity, was found guilty. He was the last member of the Lords to be hanged for murder as a common criminal. (2,711 words).

The House of Commons 1832-1868

30. This project explores one of the most transformative periods in the United Kingdom's history, widely regarded as the birth of modern British democracy. Covering key political events such as the 'Great' Reform Act, it examines how MPs and Parliament dealt with an unprecedented range of social, economic and local issues arising from rapid industrialisation and urbanisation. Detailed biographies of 2,591 MPs are being produced, alongside political histories of all the 401 constituencies in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales. Aided by the latest digital research methods, articles are being produced far more rapidly than previous publications and presented in a new web layout, in which the text will be supported with links to original sources. Particular attention is being paid to the neglected role of non-élite MPs, behind-the-scenes activists, non-electors and women in shaping both local and national political life. 7 million words has been drafted so far, with a 'preview' website providing pre-publication access to work that is already being cited widely and praised for its 'invaluable scholarship'.¹
31. A related 'Victorian Commons' website attracts over 30,000 views per year and includes hundreds of shorter articles showcasing highlights from the project. Alongside their research, staff host and attend conferences, run seminars and co-supervise PhDs in collaboration with universities. The project is very active in using social media to promote Victorian political history.
32. The project started in 2009 with 5 FTE staff, including Dr Philip Salmon (editor) and Dr Kathryn Rix (assistant editor). Staffing later declined to 3 members. A 4th member of staff joined in Nov 2024. The project's 3 senior staff also undertake management roles, making the current staffing level 3.2 FTE.

Summary Progress Table for 24-25:

Total number of Biographies Articles:	74
Total number of Constituency Articles (where applicable):	17
Total Number of Words Written:	377,395

Research Highlights:

33. The 17 new constituency articles totalling 150k words included entries exploring the local politics of Buckingham, Cambridge University, Denbighshire, Dorset, Dudley, Gloucester, Gloucestershire East, Gloucestershire West, Marylebone, Oxford University, Southampton and Tewkesbury.
34. Southampton: a spa town and port with a reputation for venality, Southampton's economic prosperity was transformed during this period, with the value of the exports growing from £62,000 in 1832 to £5 million by 1865. Its population and electorate almost tripled and by 1865 nearly half the electors were 'working-class'. The electoral shenanigans of a notorious local borough-monger John Fleming MP helped the Tories capture both of its two seats in 1835 and 1841. The overturning of the last election for extensive corruption, however, plus the construction of a railway and new docks for the P&O steamship company, marked a key turning point. In 1847 P&O's chairman Brodie Willcox was returned unopposed alongside another Liberal MP, the noted jurist Alexander Cockburn. This Liberal dominance lasted until 1862, when local disagreements allowed a Conservative to slip in at a by-election. Thereafter shared representation became the norm, with the Liberal-Conservative Russell Gurney, a leading campaigner for women's rights, and the advanced Liberal George Moffat, a 'merchant prince' in the China tea trade, being elected in 1865.

35. The 74 biographies included many non-élite MPs and some 'colourful' characters:
36. Humphrey Brown (1803-60): a Tewkesbury merchant, Brown tried his hand at various enterprises and was twice declared bankrupt before making his fortune in the 'railway mania' of the 1840s. This enabled his successful candidature for his native town as an 'independent' Liberal in 1847. His decade as MP ended in disgrace, however, after he became embroiled in a major financial scandal following the collapse of the Royal British Bank. Defeated at the poll and declared bankrupt for a third time in 1857, he was sentenced to a year's imprisonment for fraud. Released early on health grounds, he made a failed attempt to re-enter the Commons in 1859 and died the following year.
37. Edmund Lechmere Charlton (1789-1845): a 'crazy-brained fellow', Charlton's brief parliamentary career as MP for Ludlow, 1835-7, included two averted duels, a threatened breach of privilege motion against the Morning Chronicle and a three-week imprisonment in the Fleet prison. A notorious gambler, Charlton was considered a 'political chameleon' who was 'by turns a republican, a Liberal, a Conservative, and an ultra-Tory'. He is best known for his campaign against the Whig municipal corporation reforms, which ultimately led to his imprisonment.
38. John Pender (1816-1896): a 'humble' Scotsman, Pender is best known for his extraordinary rags-to-riches career in the textile finishing industry and transition from 'merchant prince' to 'cable king' by creating the world's first submarine telegraph network. His brief stint as a Liberal MP for the notoriously corrupt borough of Totnes, 1862-66, where he was unseated for 'personal bribery', has attracted little attention. Yet it not only damaged his business reputation but also delayed formal recognition of his achievements as a founding father of modern telecommunications. He later represented Wick Burghs, 1872-1885, and 1892.
39. Edward Scott (1805-1868): 'poor as a rat' but fond of 'pretty women', gambling and the turf, Scott pursued an army career in India before seducing and marrying an heiress in Maidstone, where he became a Tory councillor. In 1857 he was returned for Maidstone by a wealthy local Tory MP, allegedly as a 'paper candidate' ready to resign in a secret 'compromise' with the Liberals involving election petitions. Instead, he sat as an active but silent Tory backbencher until 1859. A leading figure in Kent's volunteer movement thereafter, and an avid wine collector, he died from liver disease in 1868.
40. Brodie McGhie Willcox (1784-1862): the self-styled 'father and founder' of P&O, which he ran with Arthur Anderson MP and turned into the largest steamship operator in the world, Willcox was elected for Southampton in 1847. A close friend of Cobden, who considered him a 'good radical', he made short speeches on maritime issues and lobbied successfully for government contracts for Southampton as a port. He died in harness after being hit by a falling tree in 1862.
41. Edwin James (1812-82): a successful barrister, James was tipped for high judicial office before a spectacular fall from grace. Elected as a Radical for Marylebone in 1859, he gained notoriety for savaging the Liberals' reform bill and a much-publicised unofficial mission to support Garibaldi in Italy. In 1861, however, he resigned as an MP and was disbarred as a QC for taking loans from his clients' opponents and 'throwing' cases. Accused of owing £35,000, he filed for bankruptcy and fled abroad, marrying a rich widow, who later divorced him and penned a savage novel attacking his behaviour. He died in poverty after unsuccessfully trying to restart his legal career in the USA.

Contemporary History

42. The Contemporary History Section concentrates on creating, utilising and promoting our oral history sound archive of interviews with former MPs. This unique archive preserves the 'life stories' of Members throughout the country, from all parties and a wide range of backgrounds. The interviews are undertaken by a team of staff and volunteers, and are archived with the British Library; this year they averaged over 7.5 hours in length.
43. The materials collected give us a very personal insight into the parliamentarians who served between 1952 and 2024. They include rich details of private lives: family background, education, motivations to enter politics, selection experiences and the difficult balance of family life and a political career. The archive offers valuable insights into high politics – the passing of specific legislation, speaking in the chamber, ministerial lives – whilst also capturing parliament's culture 'behind the scenes': gossip in the tea room, party management and working conditions. They include a wealth of materials on constituency politics, case work and campaigns. They end with a reflective section on what changed in parliament over the course of the MP's career, and thoughts on achievements and regrets.
44. The project is staffed by Emma Peplow and a part-time oral history project manager (Emme Ledgerwood/Alfie Steer). We manage a team of around 20 volunteer interviewers, who are trained by the project/Oral History Society and are supported throughout their interviews with individual and group feedback. We draw on the archive for academic and public engagement work, including conference papers, academic collaborations, our podcast 'Tales from the Green Benches', and social media posts.

Summary Progress Table:

Total number of completed interviews:	241 (17 this year)
Total number of interviews commenced:	252 (17 this year)
Total Hours Recorded:	1,020 (129 this year)

Highlights:

45. This year our archive has expanded to include more material on politics after 2010. These include insights into the 2010 coalition government; Jeremy Corbyn's sometimes difficult leadership of the Labour party, and our first reflections on both the 2016 Brexit referendum and the political chaos that followed. These more recent MPs describe a changing culture in the Commons: one where MPs are less likely to congregate in the bars or tea rooms during late-night sittings; but one which is also more diverse and feminine, with notably different expectations on behaviour both in the Chamber and the Palace as a whole.

Key figures interviewed this year:

46. Menzies Campbell Liberal Democrat MP for North East Fife, 1987-2015. This interview includes Lord Campbell's reflections on his athletics and legal careers, before discussing his time as MP, including interesting material on foreign policy committees, and as party leader. Interviewed by Nick Walker, 5 sessions totalling 8 hours 7 minutes.

47. Andrew Hunter Conservative/DUP MP for Basingstoke, 1983-2015. Hunter was drawn into right-wing Conservative politics due to an interest in Rhodesia and Northern Ireland. Hunter's increasing involvement with Northern Ireland led to considerable personal difficulties when he was targeted by the IRA, and later led to him joining the DUP. He also discusses African politics and his involvement with the Monday Club. Interviewed by Peter Reilly, 4 sessions totalling 9 hours 15 minutes.
48. Joan Ruddock Labour MP for Lewisham Deptford, 1987-2015. Ruddock charts her career from a girls' grammar in South Wales, her almost accidental involvement with CND following the stationing of nuclear missiles at Greenham Common, and her election to parliament. Ruddock faced various difficulties due to her high profile whilst in parliament. However, the interview is particularly striking for Ruddock's reflections on her personal life, including her struggles with fertility, the breakdown of her first marriage, and her campaign for legalization of assisted dying following the death of her second husband, Frank Doran. Interviewed by Debra Davidson-Smith, 4 sessions totalling 9 hours 34 minutes.
49. Gisela Stuart Labour MP for Birmingham Edgbaston, 1997-2017. Born in Germany, Stuart recalls how she faced xenophobia in her political career, both from media and fellow-politicians. Her involvement in politics began with the electoral reform society and eventually led to a high-profile position in the 'Out' campaign during the 2016 Brexit referendum. Stuart is frank about her unusual career, and highlights include a humorous retelling of her 1997 election night phone call with Alistair Campbell. Interviewed by Richard Purnell, 5 sessions totalling 11 hours 4 minutes.
50. Anne Milton Conservative MP for Guildford, 2005-2019. Milton describes her unusual career from hospital and community nursing to a centrist Conservative politician. Her time in parliament is particularly interesting due to her role as 'welfare whip', and her efforts to change the culture of both the whips' operation and the House itself. The interview concludes with her reflections on the machinations around the Brexit deal which led to her losing the Conservative whip and standing as an independent in the 2019 general election. Interviewed by Emme Ledgerwood, 3 sessions totalling 8 hours 6 minutes.

Engagement

51. The History's engagement work disseminates the results of research to the widest possible audience, encourages the research of others on the history of parliament and parliamentary institutions, and promotes scholarly and educational activity. Below is a summary of the History's work across these areas in 2024-25.

Public Engagement

Overview:

52. 2024-25 marked a significant step forward in the History's commitment to deepening and embedding engagement across the History's activities, with the formal approval of engagement strategy 2024-2027. This outlines clear targets for embedding engagement at the heart of our research culture.

Key highlights this year have been:

53. Capacity: building capacity within existing teams has been a core priority. Staffing levels and support for engagement has increased (the PE team now has 2.5FTE and is supported by senior role holders from across the organisation). All staff are being encouraged and supported to undertake engagement activities, and to share their research internally and externally.

54. Digital: significant progress has been made on developing the History's digital infrastructure. There have been two strands to this work. First, the rebuilding of the History's database, which is currently end-of-life. In 2024-5 significant progress was made on this complex database, and a BETA launch is scheduled for 2025-6. Simultaneously, the History's WordPress site has been redeveloped, this included the recategorization of all archive articles and restructuring the site's layout. This will be launched in 2025-6.
55. Dissemination: the History has engaged in a wide range of activity across the year, and this detailed below. Highlights include a new podcast Tales from the Green Benches: An Oral History of Parliament, made in collaboration with Zinc Media and widely reviewed in the national media; Georgian Elections Project, a social media campaign which ran alongside the General Election in 2024, introducing a new audience to eighteenth political culture; briefings with key parliamentary stakeholders, including the House of Commons Library and the House of Lords Library.

Below is a summary of public engagement activity within each project:

The House of Commons 1461-1504

56. The section has been engaged a wide range of academic and public engagement this year. A key highlight has been the section's hosting of an intern from the University of York's MA course in public history, who has been working on a project focused on the Commons during the Wars of the Roses. Members of the section have actively contributed a number of broader initiatives to raise awareness of the History's work, including the briefings to the House of Commons Library and University of Northampton; 'London and Parliament, from the medieval to the modern' event held in the Jubilee Room, Palace of Westminster; and academic papers and other engagement activity.

The House of Lords 1558-1603

57. The section has presented their key findings and research progress to a range of audiences. This includes disseminating research to key academic audiences, supporting media enquiries, and supporting wider History events, including briefings to the Lords Library and events on local histories.

The House of Lords 1640-1660

58. After the hectic year 2023-4, which saw multiple launch events for the Commons 1640-60 volumes, this year has been quieter for this section. Nevertheless, the section has built on its reputation as being a centre of excellence for the 1640-1660 Palace of Westminster. Key highlights have included a colloquium on Parliament in the 1640s, landmark publications on the Church in Ireland under the Stuarts, and appearances on Today in Parliament on BBC Radio 4. In September 2024, Alex Beeton was awarded the Pollard Prize for best paper delivered by an early career researcher at an Institute of Historical Research seminar, which took place during the 2023-24 academic year.

The House of Lords 1715-1790

59. During the year, members of the section have been actively involved in raising awareness about the work of the project and the History of Parliament more generally, as well as collaborating closely with colleagues across other sections. In April 2024 members of the section participated in a day workshop at the British Library co-organized with Dr Alexander Lock Reconsidering the Legacy of Robert Harley, earl of Oxford, 1724-2024. In May, June and July, Dr Eagles worked with members of the engagement team in promoting the Georgian Elections Project, timed to coincide with the General Election. Much of the content was the result of work with two MA students from the University of York. This included an array of blogs and short-form videos contrasting the world of 18th-century politics with contemporary electioneering. It also involved colleagues previously involved in the AHRC-funded ECPPEC project (Universities of Newcastle and Liverpool), Dr Hillary Burlock and Dr Kendra Packham. Dr Eagles has spoken at a wide range of events, including Marx Memorial Library, Worshipful Company of Fletchers, as part of the Open House Weekend (alongside Dr Klennike), Shirley Townswomen's Guild on Wilkes and various History wide event on the Parliamentary Estate.

The House of Commons 1832-1867

60. Across 2024-25, the Victorian Commons section has disseminated and introduced its research to a wide range of audiences. The section's website has attracted over 30,000 views, and has a growing social media engagement. The Section have given 16 public talks and seminar papers to a wide range of audiences, including parliamentarian and academic. The section's members are regular contributors to print and broadcast media, and are co-creating a new BBC Radio 4 series 'Objects of State'. A major grant (c. £100k) was awarded by the Arts and Humanities Research Council for a new collaborative PhD programme between the 1832-68 project and the University of Sheffield examining the experience of Irish MPs in the 19th century, with Dr Salmon acting as co-supervisor.

Contemporary History

61. A key highlight for the section this year was the release of the podcast: 'Tales from the Green Benches'. The episodes are still available and have been well-received. The podcast featured in the national press and was discussed on BBC Radio. The section delivered the keynote lecture for the Political Study Association's 'Oral History and Politics' workshop, and Emma Peplow was also a panellist at an Institute for Government event on whipping that included former Chief Whips.. Academic collaborations have continued throughout the year, including a successful and long-term collaboration 'A Manly Place' with Professor Helen Parr (Keele University) and Grace Heaton (Mansfield College, Oxford) on the experiences of women MPs after 1997.

Academic, university and professional engagement

62. The History's unparalleled and detailed knowledge of the history of British politics is much sought after by the scholarly community. The History disseminates its scholarly research with academic audiences via publications, research collaborations, teaching, and academic citizenship.

Publications

These have largely taken the form of Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC) Collaborative Doctoral Awards (CDAs), although the History is also involved in projects funded by major grants from the Research Councils and other grant-giving bodies. Such projects offer the History ways of enriching, developing and promoting and extending the reach of its own work in engagement with other scholars.
65. In 2024-25 the History participated in two CDAs:

The Parliaments, Politics and People seminar at the Institute of Historical Research is run by a number of the History's staff, with the fortnightly sessions now attracting around 70 attendees per session

Teaching

71. The History has developed a national reputation for delivering skills based teaching to undergraduate and postgraduate students. This national reputation is highlighted by position as a partner institution on the AHRC-funded 'Inclusive Histories', a major project, which has received £1.5 million in funding, to support teachers with more inclusive UK political history resources. The project leads are Dr Matthew Smith, Royal Holloway, and Dr Ayshah Johnston, Learning and Engagement Manager at Black Cultural Archives. Other engagement activity

Digital:

74. The History also hosts a small site, membersafter1832.historyofparliamentonline.org, initially built as a collaboration between the History, the Parliamentary Digital Service, and the House of Commons Library. The site is based on the database created originally by Professor Michael Rush from the University of Exeter and is kept up to date by staff of the House of Commons Library. We also maintain a permanent home for the database created by Sir David Beamish, the former Clerk of the Parliaments, of peerage creations since 1800. The site is available online at <https://peerages.historyofparliamentonline.org/>.
75. In addition, the History is a founding partner of the online library of digital resources developed by the Institute of Historical Research, British History Online.

St James's House:

76. The History's relationship with the public relations and publishing company St James's House started in 2013, and is based around the production of a series of books on themes to do with the history of the British parliament and parliamentary politics. The history contributes the main text, usually written partly in-house and partly by external contributors; St James's House sell to companies and organisations the opportunity to contribute text about their own activities and achievements, and the two elements are combined in a well-produced and highly illustrated volume which the company distributes widely and promotes through a launch in a central London location. The History receives from St James's House a regular fee for its collaboration, and, under previous contracts, a royalty on advertising sales over a defined threshold.
77. In 2022 we agreed with St James's House a renewal of the existing contract we hold with them, which now expires in August 2028. The new contract covers four books to be published over five years. It offers an increased fee to the History totalling £480,000 over five years, though without royalties. The four books concern: Parliament and the National Health Service, which was published in 2023, marking the 75th anniversary of the NHS; the House of Commons chamber and the Commonwealth gifts, which was published in 2024; Parliament and Monarchy, to be published in 2026; The Equal Franchise Act, marking the anniversary of the equalisation of the voting age for men and women in 1928, to be published in 2028.
78. In October 2024 we published the second book under the 2022 contract, covering Parliament Democracy and the Commonwealth, "The Commonwealth at 75". There was a launch event at Westminster Abbey.

Value Report :

79. The History is part of the key infrastructure/ecosystem of British historical knowledge and understanding.
80. The History provides original and significant contributions to our knowledge and interpretation of British parliamentary, political and social history. In addition to its published work, the History actively engages in knowledge transfer by collaborating with schools, HEIs, heritage organisations and other organisations.
81. The History's work is referenced and reviewed across a wide-range outputs. Examples from 2024-25 include: N. Abbas & Y. 82. This year, History's staff shared their expertise to a wide range audiences and institutions. This includes: the British Library, the Institute of Government, parliamentary bodies, the Historical Association, HEIs including Cambridge, Durham, Keele, Leicester de Montfort Oxford, UCL, and Warwick.
83. The History's staff routinely respond to media enquiries, and this year this has included BBC Radio 4 and Radio 5, local radio stations, and public history podcasts (ie HistoryHit). The History also responds to a large number of external inquires from academics, students, members of the public, parliamentary bodies and other organisations.

GOVERNANCE AND ADMINISTRATION OF THE TRUST

84. In February 2023, the Charity Commission approved our application to create a new Charitable Incorporated Organisation (CIO) under the Charities Act 2011 to replace the existing Trust. The CIO is an alternative legal form for a charity, which enables the charity to act in its own name (rather than collectively as Trustees), and limits the liability of trustees. In the course of the 2023-24 financial year the Trust transferred all the assets, liabilities and operations of the existing Trust to the new HPT. The formal transfer took place on 31 August 2023.

85. The administrative team consists of the Director (Dr. Jennifer Davey), along with the Office manager, Adam Tucker, and Finance Manager, Debbie Corrigan.

86. During the financial year 2024-25 the Trust occupied a building at 18 Bloomsbury Square, London, owned by the Bedford Estates, on a 10-year lease agreed in 2015. The top floor of the building was sub-let to a business. The current lease ended in November 2025 and in October 2025 the Trust re-located to 14-18 Old Street.

Staffing

87. During the year to 31 March 2025 the History employed 20.12 (2024: 21.12) full-time equivalent members of its research resource including the Section Editors and Editorial Board; there were 1.95 (2024: 1.74) full-time equivalent members of the administrative staff. The Director's time is apportioned equally between research and administration. The Deputy Director spends 80% of their time on research activities and 20% on administration.

88. The Trust is committed to reducing sickness absence in the workplace and supporting the well-being of its staff. Procedures are in place to provide support to staff who are ill or who have a long-term disability. During 2024-25, the average number of days recorded as absent due to sickness per member of staff was 0.77 days (2023-24 0.76 days).

89. There were no incidents related to the loss or unauthorised issue of personal data in 2024-25.

Financial Review

90. Unrestricted incoming resources for the year were £1,545,055 (2023-24: £2,149,130). 89% of the unrestricted income was provided by Grant-In-Aid, £1,381,482 (2023-24: £1,967,566). The significant difference between income for 2023-24 and 2024-25 is explained by an early payment of 2024-25 grant-in-aid from the House of Commons. As a result, five quarters of grant-in-aid were recognised in 2023-24 and only three in 2024-25. The unrestricted resources also include:

- receipts totalling £106,602 (2023-24: £100,459) under a fee arrangement made in consecutive contracts with Regalpress Limited, trading as St James's House, in relation to the publication of a series of books concerned with the history of parliament.
- £32,687 (2023-24: £29,057) of rental income from our building in Bloomsbury Square.
- £18,357 of income from cash held at the bank and investments. £9,695 of which was from material investments and was in line with expectations.
- £5,927 (2023-24: £30,865) from the sale of books.

There was no restricted income in 2024-25.

91. The incoming resources of HPT have been applied to further the objects of the Trust in the form of:

- a. Editorial and Research Staff costs
- b. Management and Support Staff costs
- c. General Expenses

92. All fixed assets (with a net book value of £2,254 (2024: £1,656)) were held for use by the HPT.
93. At 31 March 2025, HPT held total funds of £810,770 (2024: £1,042,962). These comprised restricted funds of £4,744 and unrestricted funds of £806,026 (2024: £4,744 and £1,038,218). Reserves have shown a large decrease year on year due to the receipt of House of Commons grant-in-aid, intended for 2024-25 spending, just before the end of March 2024 (referenced above in paragraph 90). As a result, only three quarters of the grant in aid for 2024-25 has been received in 2024-25, and the reserves, which had increased due to the early receipt in 2023-24 have been depleted. Some reserves are held for the purposes of funding future publications, and for some other purposes, including the estimated cost of dilapidations on our offices in Bloomsbury Square. Otherwise, the policy of HPT is to aim to hold reserves at a prudent level, equivalent to a maximum of three months' running costs (£468,000). Over the last few years, in agreement with House of Commons and House of Lords authorities, the Trust has been deliberately reducing its reserves in order to bring them down to this level.
94. In accordance with the Financial Memorandum, any funds held by HPT which are not required for immediate expenditure may be invested at the Trustees' discretion. The Trust held a total of £481,513 (2024: £478,597) invested in two savings accounts which is included in short term investments.
95. The net realisable value of the History of Parliament's stock of publications for sale at 31st March 2025 is £38,568 (2024: £69,901). Net realisable value is based on recent sales less impairment for slow moving stock.
96. At 31st March 2025, the 'debtors and prepayments' balance was £259,611 (2024: £254,369). It includes prepayments of £31,069, an outstanding VAT re-imburement of £1,567 and £226,975 of outstanding fee income.
97. At 31st March 2025, the 'creditors' balance was £90,987 (2024: £98,419). It includes trade creditors of £10,142 (2024: £14,036), accruals of £7,719 (2024: £8,266), deferred income of £7,423 (2024: £7,423) and PAYE/NIC creditor of £33,251 (2024: £31,368).
98. HPT is committed to the prompt payment of bills for goods and services received. Payments are normally made as specified in the contract. If there is no contractual provision or other understanding, they are paid within 30 days of the receipt of the goods or services, or on presentation of a valid invoice or similar demand, whichever is later.
99. The Comptroller and Auditor General is appointed under the Financial Memorandum to audit the financial statements.

Plans for the future

100. Our current major research projects are:

House of Commons, 1461-1504;
House of Commons 1832-1868;
House of Lords, 1558-1601;
House of Lords, 1640-1660;
House of Lords 1715-1790;
Contemporary (oral) history

Information about the recent progress of each of these projects is included in the review section on page 8 above.

101. An Annual Plan for 2024-2025 was approved by the Trustees in July 2024. It included detailed targets for each research project, digital and engagement strategies, and the risk register.
102. HPT will continue to produce scholarly and historical research on the Parliament of the United Kingdom, including the biographies of members, histories of constituencies, and of parliamentary politics in general. Alongside its research activity, the Trust will also undertake a programme of public engagement, designed to disseminate knowledge of Britain's political past to the widest possible audience. In 2024-2025, HPT began the work on exploring possible fundraising avenues, and this will continue over the next few years.
103. HPT expects that most of the cost of its future plans will continue to be met from Grant-In-Aid. A 2% increase in the level of Grant-In-Aid has been agreed with the House of Commons and House of Lords for 2025-26. HPT anticipates that income classified as fee income in 2025-26 will be £105,000, all generated from St James's House. It is also anticipated that St James's House will pay the remaining £106,528 of royalties due under the previous contract in 2025-26 (See note 12 for further information). The rental income will reduce due to the planned move to other premises in 2025-26, however, accommodation related expenditure is expected to decrease. This indicates the Trust expects to receive a minimum of £1,862,000 of income, which is 20% more than the income received in 2024-25, due to the reduced Grant-in-Aid received in 2024-25 due to timing of receipt. HPT has sufficient reserves together with the expected Grant-in-Aid in the 12 months from the date of issue of these financial statements to meet liabilities falling due. As a result, HPT believes the going concern basis remains appropriate.

STATEMENT OF RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE TRUSTEES AND OF THE ACCOUNTING OFFICER OF THE HISTORY OF PARLIAMENT TRUST

1. Under law applicable to charities in England and Wales, the Trustees are required to prepare financial statements for each financial year which give a true and fair view of the History of Parliament Trust's financial activities during the year and of its financial position at the end of the year. In preparing financial statements giving a true and fair view, the Trustees should follow best practice and:
 - a. select suitable accounting policies and then apply them consistently;
 - b. make judgements and estimates that are on a reasonable basis;
 - c. state whether applicable accounting standards and statements of recommended practice have been followed; and
 - d. prepare the financial statements on the going concern basis unless it is inappropriate to presume that the charity will continue in operation.
2. Under applicable laws, the Trustees are responsible for keeping accounting records which enable them to ascertain the financial position of the Trust. The Trustees are also responsible for preparing financial statements that comply with the Charities Act 2011.
3. The responsibilities of an Accounting Officer include:
 - a. Confirming as far as she is aware there is no relevant audit information of which the auditors are unaware and that she has taken all the steps she ought to have taken to make herself aware of any relevant audit information, and to establish that the auditors are aware of that information.
 - b. Confirming that the Annual Accounts are fair, balanced and understandable and that she takes personal responsibility for the Annual Accounts and the judgements required therein.

The Accounting Officer confirms the above have been met.
4. The History of Parliament Trust receives its principal income from Grant-In-Aid from the House of Commons Estimate and the House of Lords Estimate. Under the Financial Memorandum agreed between the Trustees and the House of Commons and the House of Lords, responsibility for the preparation and signing of the annual accounts is vested with the Director of the Trust who is formally designated as the Trust's Accounting Officer by the Trustees. Notwithstanding the requirements of Charities law, the relevant responsibilities of the Trustees and the Accounting Officer, including responsibility for the propriety and regularity of public finances, for the keeping of proper records and the preparation of the accounts, are set out in the Financial Memorandum.
5. The Financial Memorandum provides that the Trust's Director as Accounting Officer will also be liable to be summoned, together with the Clerk of the House of Commons and the Clerk of the Parliaments, to hearings on any matters relating to the Grant-In-Aid which arise before the Committee of Public Accounts. She may also be required to appear before other parliamentary committees.

GOVERNANCE STATEMENT THE HISTORY OF PARLIAMENT TRUST

Scope of responsibility

1. The Accounting Officer has responsibility for the Governance Statement which outlines the arrangements which have enabled her to discharge her responsibility for the management and control of the History of Parliament's resources during the course of 2024-25. Dr. Jennifer Davey was Accounting Officer for the 2024-25 financial year .
2. The system of internal control and controls in place are regularly reviewed with the Treasurer of the Trust and senior parliamentary staff, in particular through the regular meetings of the Trust's Finance Committee. Under the terms of the Financial Memorandum the internal controls should be reviewed every three years. They were reviewed and revised by the Finance Committee during 2024-25.

The governance framework

3. The History of Parliament Trust was established by a declaration of Trust made on 31 December 1940 with subsequent variations made in 1956, 1967, 1971 and 1996. The Trust is a registered charity. The Trust converted during 2023-24 to a Charitable Incorporated Organisation under the Charities Act 2011. The transfer of assets, liabilities and operations to the new HPT took place on 31 August 2023.
4. The Trust's original objectives were to compile and publish an authoritative History of Parliament from the 13th century in the form of publishing biographies of Members of Parliament and constituency histories, with introductory essays which analyse this information. This objective has been extended under the new HPT to also engage the interest of the widest range of publics in the history of the UK Parliament from earliest times to the present through its published work and other activities, and to disseminate, promote and encourage other research on the History of Parliament and Parliamentary institutions.
5. The Trust has an Executive Committee whose function is to prepare an agenda for the Trustees' quarterly meetings and take such decisions as are needed in the period between those meetings. It consists of the Chair and the Treasurer ex officio, together with two other Trustees nominated by the full body of Trustees (the 2024 general election significantly altered the trustee board, only one trustee has been identified so far. A further trustee will be nominated in the autumn); the Director of the History and Chair of the Editorial Board attend as advisers and the Secretary to the Trust acts as secretary to the Committee.
6. The Trust also has a Finance Committee, which consists of the Treasurer of the Trust, the Director and Accounting Officer, the Secretary of the Trust, together with the Director of Financial Management and Performance at the House of Commons and the Deputy Head of Finance at the House of Lords, together with other staff as appropriate. It meets twice yearly.
7. In setting the programme of research and publication, the Trustees have regard to the Charity Commission's general guidance on public benefit. The Trustees always ensure that the programmes the Trust undertakes are in line with our charitable objectives and aims.

8. The Trust is principally funded by Grant-In-Aid by the House of Commons and House of Lords. The House of Commons Commission delegates detailed scrutiny of the use of the Grant-In-Aid to the Finance Committees of both the House of Commons and the House of Lords. The Financial Memorandum sets out:
- the administrative and financial arrangements with regard to propriety, financial management and the safeguarding of public funds;
 - the responsibilities of the Trust's designated Accounting Officer, who is also the Director of the Trust; and
 - the responsibilities of the Trust for the day to day management of the Trust's Grant-In-Aid.
9. The Trust has in place a system of internal control and framework for risk management which is proportionate to the size and complexity of the organisation. Procedures have been put in place to deal with risks particularly those associated with the Trust's Reserves Policy, Information Technology and Employment Issues. Its risk register and procedures are reviewed annually as part of the History's planning process, and the register is incorporated in its annual plan.
10. The Director's performance and pay arrangements are reviewed by the Trustees every five years. The Director receives the same percentage cost of living increase as other staff under the Universities and Colleges Employers' Association (UCEA) arrangements.

The Trust's governance activities in 2024-25

12. The Trustees met on 3 occasions in 2024-25 to consider among other things the following matters:
- The progress of the History's various research projects;
 - Financial planning and budgeting;
 - The History's public engagement activities;
 - The future governance of the Trust including the transfer to the new Trust.
13. The key data reviewed by the Board on the progress of its research is compiled on the basis of completed articles filed within the History's computer network and audited by the Director and members of its Editorial Board. Trustees regard this as good assurance of the existence and quality of the articles completed.
14. There was a 62% attendance of Trustees at Trust meetings. The timing of the general election in July 2024 had an impact on attendance.

The risk and control framework

15. A risk management strategy is in place and includes systems and procedures to mitigate identified risks and minimise their impact. A risk register is circulated to Trustees and is currently agreed by them annually as part of the History's Annual Plan. In future, the risk register will be reviewed bi-annually. The Plan will normally be made available online at www.historyofparliamentonline.org (the site is currently undergoing rebuilding).
16. The main risks identified in respect of Governance and management involve project specification and timetable; the relationship between practice and policies pursued by the Trustees and Editorial Board, and the potential loss of key staff as well as non-attendance by Trustees and vacancies among Trustees. In respect of research activities, the register identifies risk in terms of the quality of articles produced, and online and print publication processes. Operational risks include employment issues, cyber security, health and safety, staff turnover and recruitment, premises and property management and disaster. Financial risks include funding and budgeting, fraud and error, and banking.
17. Risks are assessed in terms of their probability and impact, assigned to a risk owner and a procedure for control and mitigation is set out, together with the current status of mitigation activities.
18. Additional risks added to the risk register in 2024-25 include: cyber security/IT failure and missed payments from St James's House. There were no lapses of protective security.
19. The system of internal control is based on an ongoing process designed to identify and prioritise the risks to the achievement of the Trust's policies, aims and objectives, to consider the likelihood of those risks being realised and the impact should they be realised, and to manage them efficiently, effectively and economically.

20. The system of internal control is designed to manage risk to a reasonable level rather than eliminate all the risk of failure to achieve policies, aims and objectives of the Trust. In doing this, it can therefore only provide reasonable and not absolute assurance of effectiveness.
21. The system of internal control has been in place in the Trust for the year ended 31 March 2025 and up to the date of approval of the annual report and accounts and accords with Treasury guidance.

Review of effectiveness

22. The Trustees comply with the principles laid out in corporate governance in central government departments, "the Code". There are certain principles in the Code which are not applicable to the Trust's Board and these relate in the main to central government boards' roles relating to government policy making and the power of ministers. Other elements which are not applicable include certain elements in the Code dealing with board composition and the board's relationship with its Arm's Length Bodies. The Trust seeks to uphold the highest standards of governance through the accountability and transparency of its management processes, decision-making and communications.
23. The History usually prepares, reviews and publishes its strategic plan each year. A survey of the academic and cultural value of the output of the Trust is also completed in each year as part of its annual review, and a summary is included in the Annual Report, above. The Trust continues to monitor its reserve closely and to discuss the appropriate level through its Finance Committee.
24. The Accounting Officer has responsibility for maintaining an effective system of internal control and periodically to review the procedures that we have in place. Her review of the Trust's internal control is informed by the work of Parliament's internal auditors, and comments made by the external auditors in their management letter and other reports. The last internal audit was carried out in 2020. She also has regard to guidance on internal control and financial management issued by HM Treasury. In her opinion the Trust's system of internal control meets the criteria for effectiveness set out in paragraph 23 above.
25. In the opinion of the Trustees and the Accounting Officer, the Governance processes and practices employed by the Trust have enabled us as Accounting Officer and Trustees to effectively discharge our responsibilities to manage and control the organisation's resources during the course of 2024-25.

THE REPORT OF THE COMPTROLLER AND AUDITOR GENERAL TO THE TRUSTEES OF THE HISTORY OF PARLIAMENT TRUST

Opinion on financial statements

I have audited the financial statements of the History of Parliament Trust for the year ended 31 March 2025.

The financial statements comprise the History of Parliament Trust's:

- Balance Sheet as at 31 March 2025;
- Statement of Financial Activities and Statement of Cash Flows for the year then ended; and
- the related notes including the significant accounting policies.

The financial reporting framework that has been applied in the preparation of the financial statements is applicable law and United Kingdom accounting standards including Financial Reporting Standards (FRS) 102, the Financial Reporting Standard applicable in the UK and Republic of Ireland (United Kingdom Generally Accepted Accounting Practice).

In my opinion, the financial statements:

- give a true and fair view of the state of the History of Parliament Trust's affairs as at 31 March 2025 and its net movement in funds for the year then ended;
- have been properly prepared in accordance with United Kingdom Generally Accepted Accounting Practice; and Charities Statement of Recommended Practice; and
- have been properly prepared in accordance with the Charities Act 2011.

Opinion on regularity

In my opinion, in all material respects, the income and expenditure recorded in the financial statements have been applied to the purposes intended by Parliament and the financial transactions recorded in the financial statements conform to the authorities which govern them.

Basis for opinion

I conducted my audit in accordance with International Standards on Auditing (UK) (ISAs (UK)), applicable law and Practice Note 10 Audit of Financial Statements and Regularity of Public Sector Bodies in the United Kingdom (2024). My responsibilities under those standards are further described in the Auditor's responsibilities for the audit of the financial statements section of my report.

Those standards require me and my staff to comply with the Financial Reporting Council's Revised Ethical Standard 2024. I am independent of the History of Parliament Trust in accordance with the ethical requirements that are relevant to my audit of the financial statements in the UK. My staff and I have fulfilled our other ethical responsibilities in accordance with these requirements.

I believe that the audit evidence I have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for my opinion.

Conclusions relating to going concern

In auditing the financial statements, I have concluded that the History of Parliament Trust's use of the going concern basis of accounting in the preparation of the financial statements is appropriate.

Based on the work I have performed, I have not identified any material uncertainties relating to events or conditions that, individually or collectively, may cast significant doubt on the History of Parliament Trust's ability to continue as a going concern for a period of at least twelve months from when the financial statements are authorised for issue.

My responsibilities and the responsibilities of the Trustees and Accounting Officer with respect to going concern are described in the relevant sections of this report.

Other information

The other information comprises information included in the Annual Report, but does not include the financial statements and my auditor's report thereafter. The Trustees and Accounting Officer are responsible for the other information.

My opinion on the financial statements does not cover the other information and, except to the extent otherwise explicitly stated in my report, I do not express any form of assurance conclusion thereon.

My responsibility is to read the other information and, in doing so, consider whether the other information is materially inconsistent with the financial statements, or my knowledge obtained in the audit, or otherwise appears to be materially misstated.

If I identify such material inconsistencies or apparent material misstatements, I am required to determine whether this gives rise to a material misstatement in the financial statements themselves. If, based on the work I have performed, I conclude that there is a material misstatement of this other information, I am required to report that fact.

I have nothing to report in this regard.

Opinion on other matters

In my opinion, based on the work undertaken in the course of the audit the information given in the Annual Report for the financial year for which the financial statements are prepared is consistent with the financial statements and is in accordance with the applicable legal requirements.

Matters on which I report by exception

In the light of the knowledge and understanding of the History of Parliament Trust and its environment obtained in the course of the audit, I have not identified material misstatements in the Annual Report.

I have nothing to report in respect of the following matters which I report to you if, in my opinion:

- adequate accounting records have not been kept by the History of Parliament Trust or returns adequate for my audit have not been received from branches not visited by my staff; or
- I have not received all of the information and explanations I require for my audit; or

- the financial statements are not in agreement with the accounting records and returns; or
- certain disclosures of remuneration specified by the Charities Act 2011 have not been made.

Responsibilities of the Trustees and Accounting Officer for the financial statements

As explained more fully in the Statement of Responsibilities of the Trustees and of the Accounting Officer of the History of Parliament Trust, the Trustees and Accounting Officer are responsible for:

- maintaining proper accounting records;
- providing the C&AG with access to all information of which management is aware that is relevant to the preparation of the financial statements such as records, documentation and other matters;
- providing the C&AG with additional information and explanations needed for his audit;
- providing the C&AG with unrestricted access to persons within the History of Parliament Trust from whom the auditor determines it necessary to obtain audit evidence;
- ensuring such internal controls are in place as deemed necessary to enable the preparation of financial statements to be free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error; and
- preparing financial statements which give a true and fair view and are in accordance with the applicable financial reporting framework;
- assessing the History of Parliament Trust's ability to continue as a going concern, disclosing, as applicable, matters related to going concern and using the going concern basis of accounting unless the Trustees and the Accounting Officer either intend to liquidate the entity or to cease operations, or has no realistic alternative but to do so.

Auditor's responsibilities for the audit of the financial statements

My responsibility is to audit and express an opinion on the financial statements in accordance with the Charities Act 2011.

My objectives are to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements as a whole are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue a report that includes my opinion. Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance but is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with ISAs (UK) will always detect a material misstatement when it exists. Misstatements can arise from fraud or error and are considered material if, individually or in the aggregate, they could reasonably be expected to influence the economic decisions of users taken on the basis of these financial statements.

Extent to which the audit was considered capable of detecting non-compliance with laws and regulations including fraud

I design procedures in line with my responsibilities, outlined above, to detect material misstatements in respect of non-compliance with laws and regulations, including fraud. The extent to which my procedures are capable of detecting non-compliance with laws and regulations, including fraud is detailed below.

Identifying and assessing potential risks related to non-compliance with laws and regulations, including fraud

In identifying and assessing risks of material misstatement in respect of non-compliance with laws and regulations, including fraud, I:

- considered the nature of the sector, control environment and operational performance including the design of the History of Parliament Trust's accounting policies;
- inquired of management, and those charged with governance, including obtaining and reviewing supporting documentation relating to the History of Parliament Trust's policies and procedures on:
 - identifying, evaluating and complying with laws and regulations;
 - detecting and responding to the risks of fraud; and
 - the internal controls established to mitigate risks related to fraud or non-compliance with laws and regulations including the History of Parliament Trusts's controls relating to the History of Parliament Trust's compliance with the Charities Act 2011 and Managing Public Money;
- inquired of management and those charged with governance whether:
 - they were aware of any instances of non-compliance with laws and regulations; and
 - they had knowledge of any actual, suspected, or alleged fraud;
- discussed with the engagement team regarding how and where fraud might occur in the financial statements and any potential indicators of fraud.

As a result of these procedures, I considered the opportunities and incentives that may exist within the History of Parliament Trust for fraud and identified the greatest potential for fraud in the following areas: revenue recognition, posting of unusual journals, complex transactions, and bias in management estimates. In common with all audits under ISAs (UK), I am required to perform specific procedures to respond to the risk of management override.

I obtained an understanding of the History of Parliament Trusts framework of authority and other legal and regulatory frameworks in which the History of Parliament Trust operates. I focused on those laws and regulations that had a direct effect on material amounts and disclosures in the financial statements or that had a fundamental effect on the operations of the History of Parliament Trust. The key laws and regulations I considered in this context included The Charities Act 2011, Managing Public Money, the Financial Memorandum with the House of Commons and the House of Lords, employment law and tax legislation.

Audit response to identified risk

To respond to the identified risks resulting from the above procedures:

- I reviewed the financial statement disclosures and testing to supporting documentation to assess compliance with provisions of relevant laws and regulations described above as having direct effect on the financial statements;
- I enquired of management and the Trustees concerning actual and potential litigation and claims;
- I reviewed minutes of meetings of those charged with governance and the Trustee Board;
- I addressed the risk of fraud through management override of controls by testing the appropriateness of journal entries and other adjustments; assessing whether the judgements on estimates are indicative of a potential bias; and evaluating the business rationale of any significant transactions that are unusual or outside the normal course of business; and

- I communicated relevant identified laws and regulations and potential risks of fraud to all engagement team members and remained alert to any indications of fraud or non-compliance with laws and regulations throughout the audit.

A further description of my responsibilities for the audit of the financial statements is located on the Financial Reporting Council's website at: www.frc.org.uk/auditorsresponsibilities. This description forms part of my report.

Other auditor's responsibilities

I am required to obtain sufficient appropriate audit evidence to give reasonable assurance that the expenditure and income recorded in the financial statements have been applied to the purposes intended by Parliament and the financial transactions recorded in the financial statements conform to the authorities which govern them.

I communicate with those charged with governance regarding, among other matters, the planned scope and timing of the audit and significant audit findings, including any significant deficiencies in internal control I identify during my audit.

1. Accounting Policies

(a) Accounting Convention

- I. The financial statements are prepared in a form determined by the Trustees in accordance with the Financial Memorandum agreed between the Trustees and the House of Commons and the House of Lords. Without limiting the information given, the accounts meet the accounting and disclosure requirements of the Statement of Recommended Practice "Accounting and Reporting by Charities" (published by the Charity Commission for England and Wales) and the Charities Act.
- II. The History of Parliament Trust is a public benefit entity.
- III. As all income and expenditure in both 2023-24 and 2024-25 was unrestricted, no analysis is required showing the comparators split between restricted and unrestricted.

(b) Cash in hand and at the bank

This comprises of cash in hand and current balances with banks and other financial institutions which are readily convertible to known amounts of cash, which are subject to insignificant risk of changes in value and have an original maturity of less than three months.

(c) Income

- I. Grant-in-Aid is accounted for in the year it is received.
- II. All other income is included in the Statement of Financial Activities when the History is entitled to the income, receipt is probable and its amount can be measured reliably.
- III. Income from rental of office space under an operating lease (see notes 1(m) and 20) is accounted for over the period in which it is earned. Rent received in advance and in hand at the end of the financial year is accounted for as deferred income.

(d) Direct Charitable Expenditure and other costs incurred in achieving the objectives of the Charity

As required by the charity SORP, expenditure is analysed between that directly attributable to our charitable activities and those attributable to governance and support costs. Direct costs are allocated directly to an activity where possible (largely on the basis of staff time, following a survey of staff) and otherwise in the same proportion as the direct costs.

(e) Tax

The History of Parliament Trust is registered for VAT purposes. Where output tax is chargeable, income is stated net of VAT. Expenditure is stated net of recoverable VAT. The Trust is exempt from corporation tax under Section 505A ICTA 1988 on its charitable activities.

(f) Tangible Fixed Assets and Depreciation

All tangible fixed assets purchased by the Trust are capitalised in the balance sheet at cost. The capitalisation threshold for 2024-25 is £500.

Depreciation is provided on a straight line basis at the following annual rates in order to write off the cost of each asset to its estimated residual value over its estimated useful life:

ICT equipment	4 years
Furniture, fittings and office machines	5 years

A full year's depreciation is charged in the year of acquisition, no depreciation is charged in the year of disposal. A review for impairment of a fixed asset will be carried out if events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of the fixed asset may not be recoverable.

(g) Stock

Stock consists principally of published printed sets of the History of Parliament held for sale and is valued at the lower of cost and net realisable value. Net realisable value of stock is based on recent sales less impairment for slow moving stock. The provision takes into account the impact of free online publication on future sales.

(h) Employees' Pension Costs

In compliance with 17.18 of the Charity SORP, it is the Trust's policy to treat pension costs for employees as being equal to the actual contributions payable during the year (see Note 9d).

(i) Redundancy Costs

The History of Parliament recognises redundancy costs once a decision has been made to make staff redundant and includes the expected amount of the payment within staff costs.

(j) Debtors and Creditors

The year-end debtors and creditors are valued at amortised costs based on invoices or other reasonable estimates.

(k) Investments

The Trust values current asset investments at the cash amount of deposit including any interest receivable which had not been credited to the account at the year end. Current asset investments are defined as those with a maturity of less than a year at the balance sheet date.

(l) Projects and Collaborations

HPT is involved as a partner in a number of university-based collaborative projects mainly financed by the UK Research Councils and research charities. HPT's involvement is largely advisory, and is described more fully in the Annual Report. The benefits to the HPT include access to material and research that contribute to its overall research mission, and improving knowledge and usage of its own work.

(m) Operating Leases

HPT holds an operating lease on its accommodation. Rent is charged to the SOFA and future rent is disclosed in note 20. It has no other operating leases.

(n) Going concern

See Note 17a for more details about the level of reserves and paragraph 103 of the Annual Report for more detail on our assessment of going concern.

(o) Provisions

The History of Parliament recognises a liability for a provision for a legal or constructive obligation when either the timing or the amount of the future expenditure required to settle the obligation is uncertain. The amount recognised as a provision is the best estimate of the expenditure required to settle or to transfer it to a third party at the reporting date. When calculating the amount, consideration will be given to when the payments are likely to be made and future events and uncertainties which may affect the amount required to settle the obligation. See Note 16 for more details.

(p) Development costs

Expenditure related to updating and redesigning the Trust's website are charged to revenue as they are incurred and are included within the website and outreach line in Note 6.

Grant-in-aid in 2024-25 received from the House of Commons Vote is lower than the prior year due to £293,042 relating to the 2024-25 financial year being received late in 2023-24 and in advance of the financial year it was intended for. Under the Charities SORP this was recognised in the year of receipt, however it remained within cash balances at 31 March 2024, and was utilised in the 2024-25 financial year.

The publication income includes royalty income received under agreements with Cambridge University Press (£1,178) and Boydell & Brewer (£4,649) and the balance being from the Houses of Parliament Bookshop (£100).

The fee income is the result of the Trust's collaboration with St James's House Publishing under a 2022 contract which expires in August 2028. The new contract relates to the production of four books over five years, and provides the Trust with an increased fee of £480,000, paid in monthly instalments over the period of the contract. Royalty income is not payable under this new contract. In October 2024 we published the second book under the 2022 contract, "The Commonwealth at 75".

The Trust also has an arrangement with the Parliamentary History Trust to provide office accommodation for a fee of £2,000 per annum.

(b) Research Services There was no income received in 2024-25. In 2023-34, the History received £1,000 from the Royal Historical Society towards the cost of running a workshop. Dr Jennifer Davey's emoluments as Director of £97,886 (2023-24 £32,170, she joined the History in December 2023) comprised a salary of £85,490 and employer's contributions to the pension scheme of £12,396. Consistent with professional staff employed by the Trust, the Director is an ordinary member of the Universities Superannuation Scheme.

In 2023-24, Paul Seaward's emoluments as Director of £78,020 comprised a salary of £64,161 and employer's contributions to the pension scheme of £13,859. Dr Jennifer Davey's emoluments comprised a salary of £27,667 and employer's contributions to the pension scheme of £4,503.

(c) Trustees' Remuneration

No trustee or person with a family or business connection with a trustee has received any remuneration or expenses directly or indirectly from the Trust.

(d) Superannuation

The employer's superannuation contribution included in 6(a) above comprises £171,915 for staff (£233,687 in 2023-24) participating in the Universities Superannuation Scheme. The reduction in costs between 2023-24 and 2024-25 is largely explained by the reduction in the rate of employer contributions from 21.6% to 14.5% from 1 January 2024. The employers' National Insurance contribution included in 6 (a) above comprises £131,472 for professional staff and £3,559 for support staff (£133,342 and £3,650 respectively in 2023-24).

Universities Superannuation Scheme

The History of Parliament participates in the Universities Superannuation Scheme (USS). The History of Parliament had 24 active members participating in the scheme at the 31st March 2025. The scheme is the principal pension scheme for academic and academic-related employees of UK universities and other higher education and research institutions. Due to the mutual nature of the scheme, the assets are not attributed to individual institutions and a scheme-wide contribution is set. The History is therefore exposed to actuarial risks associated with other institutions' employees and is unable to identify its share of the underlying assets and liabilities of the scheme on a consistent and reasonable basis. Like other institutions participating in USS, the Trust therefore accounts for the scheme as if it were a defined contribution scheme. As a result, the amount charged to the Statement of Financial Activities represents the contributions payable to the scheme. Since the History cannot identify its share of the USS assets and liabilities, the details below are for the scheme as whole.

An actuarial valuation report as at the end of March 2020 showed the scheme to be in deficit. Measures were agreed via the USS Joint Negotiating Committee to address the deficit in the autumn of 2021. These included changes to contributions and future service benefits, as well as an enhanced level of covenant support to the Scheme, including a rolling long-term moratorium on employers leaving the scheme without the consent of USS. These changes were implemented from 1 April 2022. Employer contributions were increased to 21.6% of salary, and employee contributions were 9.8% of salary. Following a further actuarial valuation in March 2023 and a valuation of a surplus of £7.4 billion, employer contributions were reduced to 14.5% of salary from 1 January 2024 and employee contributions to 6.1% from the same date. From 1 April 2024 the pre-April 2022 defined benefits were restored. The next valuation report is March 2026. As at 31 March 2025, the interim assessment indicates that the scheme is still in surplus. The assets of the scheme are held in a separate fund administered by the trustee, Universities Superannuation Scheme Limited. The auditors and actuary to the USS have advised that it is appropriate to take the pension costs in the Trust's accounts to be equal to the actual contributions paid during the year. Management agree with this assessment as it is compliant with 17.18 of the Charity SORP.

Of the £226,975 outstanding at 31 March 2025 (£193,807 2023-24) £106,528 related to royalties (£136,754 2023-24), £109,387 relates to license fees (£57,053 2023-24) and the balance £11,060 is due to image costs and contributor fees. The History of Parliament's previous lease on its office accommodation in Bloomsbury Square expired in November 2015. In 2014-15 a provision was established for the expected Dilapidations costs that the Trust would incur if it leaves the accommodation, based on a Schedule of Dilapidations prepared by the landlord in Autumn 2014. In November 2015 the lease was renewed, but with a break clause operable in November 2020. The Trustees decided not to exercise the break clause and so most of the items on the dilapidations schedule have been held over until the end of the lease in 2025. A dilapidations review conducted by Hanway Commercial in June 2024 concluded that the provision in place was adequate. Management conclude this is still adequate for 2024-25.

The employee benefits provision in 2023-24 represented an assessment of the total amount due to HMRC for a taxable benefit previously undisclosed on a staff health scheme provision for eye tests and counselling. This came to light when a review was undertaken of the value for money of this scheme. A voluntary disclosure was made to HMRC. The provision represented the value an independent assessor had made and covered the amount due, interest, penalties and the fee to the assessor.

This matter was resolved through an agreement with HMRC during the latter stages of 2024-25 and the provision utilised.
