The BPA decided to apply for CIO status at its Annual General Meeting on 9 September 2022. It became a registered charity on 29 April 2024. The BPA then held its first Annual General Meeting as a registered charity on 13 September 2024.

The first three trustees of the BPA were named in the application for CIO status, as approved at the AGM held on 9 September 2022:

- Fiona Macpherson – President
- Simon Kirchin – Director
- Garrath Williams – Treasurer

The following trustees were elected officers of the BPA prior to its recognition as a CIO, and formally took up post as CIO trustees on 13 September 2024, with the approval of the Association's Annual General Meeting, in line with the resolution to apply for CIO status in September 2022:

- Jennifer Corns
- Martin O'Neill
- Heather Widdows

The following trustees were elected officers of the BPA prior to its approval as a CIO. Having come to the end of their first terms of office, they successfully stood for re-election in June 2024. Again, they took up their posts following the Association's Annual General Meeting on 13 September 2024, in line with §13.1.c of the constitution:

- Derek Brown
- Ian Kidd
- Fiona Woollard

The following trustees were elected by the membership in June 2024, and again took up their posts following the Association's Annual General Meeting on 13 September 2024, in line with §13.1.c of the constitution:

- Sophie-Grace Chappell
- Josh Forstenzer
- Rosanna Keefe

The following nominated trustees were appointed in 2024, in line with §13.2 of the constitution:

- Julian Baggini
- Robert Penney

Section C

Objectives and activities

Summary of the objects of the charity set out in its governing document

For the public benefit the advancement of education, specifically by the promotion of excellence in the teaching of, study of, and research in the academic discipline of Philosophy in the United Kingdom within higher education and also within the wider community.

Summary of the main activities undertaken for the public benefit in relation to these objects (include within this section the statutory declaration that trustees have had regard to the guidance issued by the Charity Commission on public benefit)

The British Philosophical Association is a learned society which was formally recognised as a Charitable Incorporated Organisation on 29 April 2024, having previously operated as an unincorporated association.

Our activities for 2024 reflected the pattern set out in our application for charitable status. Through these activities, the trustees aim at the public benefit by supporting and promoting the discipline of philosophy in the UK, taking regard of the Charity Commission's guidance on public benefit.

Equality, Diversity, and Inclusion

One of the BPA's main aims is to make access to the formal study of philosophy at all levels from post-16 as inclusive as possible. To this end the BPA has collaborated with other societies and with representatives from university departments. With other philosophical societies and associations, we have raised substantial funds and commissioned research into EDI in philosophy, to:

- produce detailed demographic information on participation in philosophy in the UK;
- report on the experience of people from all backgrounds of their participation in philosophy in the UK;
- make recommendations to address any problems identified in the research.

The first part of this research was conducted by the Eleanor Glanville Institute, University of Lincoln, and concluded in August 2024. The findings have been shared with members (both departments and individuals) and other philosophical associations, in order to stimulate informed discussion of the measures our profession can take to address under-representation and exclusion. We are currently considering what follow-up research and activities are called for.

This work aims to ensure that philosophy education offers benefits to as wide an audience as possible, regardless of race, sex and other protected characteristics.

Philosophy Matters and British Philosophy Fortnight

A significant activity in 2024 was designing and preparing the launch of this campaign, to prepare for the first British Philosophy Fortnight. (This took place successfully in March 2025, including schools philosophy prizes sponsored by two exam boards, the AQA and OCR.)

This campaign aims to show the broad public relevance of philosophy as an academic discipline and to promote its study and teaching.

Departments Under Threat

The BPA has continued to assist colleagues and departments where there has been the threat of significant cuts in provision. Of necessity, most of this work goes on “behind the scenes,” e.g. to lobby managers who are considering cuts to philosophy provision or to support colleagues who may be facing threats of redundancy.

This work aims to support the continuing health of higher educational provision in philosophy.

Philosophy in Schools

Since the successful launch of the Association for Philosophy Teachers in 2023, the BPA has continued a close working relationship. The APT chair, Robert Penney, is a co-opted trustee of the BPA; the BPA Director, Simon Kirchin, liaises regularly with the APT.

Our trustees also contribute to the discussions relating to the AQA A-level in Philosophy, the Quality Assurance Agency for Higher Education (QAA)'s Subject Benchmark Statement for Philosophy, the Cambridge OCR exam board and its philosophy-related provisions.

The BPA and Association for Philosophy Teachers made an extensive joint submission to the DfE's call for evidence as the curriculum up to 18 takes shape under a new government. This builds on joint work regarding the AQA A-Level in Philosophy and the discussions around a potential GCSE in Philosophy.

We also contribute to broader discussions within the Arts and Humanities Alliance, to promote the profile and contributions of philosophy within the broader humanities.

Again, this work aims to support educational provision in philosophy.

Resources for Early Career Philosophers

Provision of philosophy education naturally depends on the continued entry of qualified philosophers into professional teaching and research. However, the situation for PhD philosophy students seeking careers in philosophy is especially difficult at the moment. The BPA has therefore created and published extensive resources and tip sheets for philosophers starting their careers:

<https://bpa.ac.uk/resources-for-early-career-philosophers/>

By supporting the entry of new members into the profession, this activity also supports the continuing health of educational provision in philosophy.

Additional Activities

BPA trustees liaise with other relevant bodies concerned with education and research – for example, with the British Academy concerning future plans for the Research Excellence Framework.

In 2024 we also commenced plans for prizes to recognise outstanding work and initiatives in philosophy, to support the public profile of philosophy. (The first round of prizes is anticipated for 2026.)

Additional details of objectives and activities (Optional information)

You may choose to include further statements, where relevant, about:

- policy on grantmaking;
- policy programme related investment;
- contribution made by volunteers.

The BPA has no grantmaking programme. It also has no investments.

The BPA does not have a volunteer scheme, although our members are involved in many activities, alongside the trustees – for example, in planning/organising events as part of British Philosophy Fortnight.

Philosophy in Schools

With the Association for Philosophy Teachers, we made a joint submission to the DfE's call for evidence on the curriculum up to 18.

Section E Financial review

Brief statement of the charity's policy on reserves

The BPA aims to hold approximately one to two year's income in reserve, to offset any fluctuations in income or expenditure.

Details of any funds materially in deficit

None

Further financial review details (Optional information)

You may choose to include additional information, where relevant about:

- the charity's principal sources of funds (including any fundraising);
- how expenditure has supported the key objectives of the charity;
- investment policy and objectives including any ethical investment policy adopted.

We do not engage in any fundraising – all income is derived from membership payments.

We do not hold any investments.

The accounts were prepared by Garrath Williams, as BPA Treasurer.

The accounts were then checked by David Crayston, Accounts Manager at Edge of the World Ltd, and also formerly Director of the Westmorland County Agricultural Society Ltd (2016-20, 2022-5).

Section F Other optional information

This report was approved by the trustees at their meeting of 14 October 2025.
