1.2 Purpose: Benefit to the Public

- Provision of training to ministers of the religion.
- Spreading the principles of the religion.
- Raising awareness and understanding of the religion's beliefs and practices.
- Carrying out missionary and outreach work.

1.3 Purpose: Intended Beneficiaries

- The general public i.e. anyone and everyone.
- By any and all means possible, for example, radio, videos, internet and public meetings.

1.4 Purpose: Benefits of the Charity

- To help others at their point of need, for example, food.
- To contribute to the mental health and wellbeing of others, for example, counselling.
- To provide relief to those in need, for example, medical supplies.
- To promote and maintain beliefs in the region.
- To attract new followers in same beliefs as the region.
- To establish and support the establishment of new churches in the region.
- To support the maintenance of existing churches in the region

1.5 Purpose: Benefit for the Public

- The charity's benefits are all, the general public, anyone and everyone.

- The adoption of a moral framework which encourages people to be good citizens.

1.6 Purpose: To be beneficial, not harmful

- To demonstrate respect, caring, kindness and compassion to everyone at all times including those who do not share the same region.

1.7 Purpose: Incidental Private Benefit

- Any private benefit to be incidental in nature.

2. Public Benefit Report

The COVID-19 pandemic significantly disrupted nearly every aspect of GOUK's fundraising activities, with profound effects across multiple divisions. Among the challenges was the cancellation of the annual fundraising banquet during those years. This event must be restructured and reinstated, as its absence has had a wide-reaching impact on all areas of our organization, both domestic and international. Despite these obstacles, our resilient team has continued to serve within the limits of their abilities and resources.

We have been able to support some overseas projects as funding allows. These projects range from small feeding initiatives in remote villages to modest training seminars on health and wellness. Local workers often display remarkable ingenuity, and we are delighted to support their ideas by providing small project funding. For example, providing a sewing machine enables them to purchase fabric, produce goods, and sell them for a modest profit. This not only boosts their confidence but can also serve as the foundation for a small business, with the potential for expansion as additional equipment is acquired.

This model can be adapted for other purposes as well. For instance, with assistance, locals can rent a small plot of land, plant seeds, and cultivate vegetables that can later be sold for a profit. With slightly more financial support and training, they could manage small-scale livestock projects involving animals like laying hens, ducks, goats, or pigs. These projects—while small in scale—have a profound impact, providing participants with a sense of self-worth and the opportunity to improve their livelihoods. One such project, introduced in Uganda by a member of our team, has shown promising results.

As we slowly recover from the financial setbacks of the recent hard years starting in 2019, the ministry is cautiously exploring and developing these small-scale initiatives in partnership with local workers. These projects hold immense potential, offering exciting possibilities for both the participants and our organization. Training and leadership development remain key pillars that we continue to strengthen.

2.2 Summary of achievements and outcomes during the year

For forty years, we have been operating inside the UK amid other countries. Although our work has become more focused in recent years, we initially operated in many more regions. Witnessing the growth and progress of local workers remains an incredibly rewarding aspect of our efforts.

Advancements in technology have revolutionized how we connect and collaborate with local workers, enabling us to stay engaged in their ministries and skill development. Platforms like Zoom and others have opened up extraordinary opportunities for training and project development. For example, I recently delivered a lecture via Zoom from my office to an audience in an Asian country. Hundreds of people attended the event, which was simultaneously interpreted into two languages and broadcasted to two additional venues, each hosting hundreds more participants. These sessions were further streamed to twelve smaller study groups, involving over 1,200 to 1,500 participants in total. This remarkable reach was achieved with minimal effort and cost.

2.3 Summary of benefits and impact made during the year.

Each passing year offers us a chance to reflect on our journey with careful optimism. In the early days, we utilized the resources and skills we had on offer, grateful for the few who allowed us to mentor them despite our limitations. Over time, both our team and our methods have evolved, and it has been gratifying to see new members join us in our overseas missions.

Year after year, and decade after decade, we review our progress with a mix of pride and a desire for continuous improvement. The cumulative efforts have fostered strong partnerships with local teams, enabling them to develop skills and gain confidence.

A particularly heartwarming example is the national luncheons held during our visits, where local workers invite their families, including adult children. Many of these children have achieved advanced education, earning degrees in theology, business, music, and other fields, further supporting their families' ministry efforts. On one visit, a pastor asked how many in the audience had made life-changing decisions when I first lectured there 36 years ago. Sixteen individuals stood up, acknowledging that moment as the beginning of their journey in that assembly.

After forty years of collaboration (and over two decades since GOUKL's founding in 2001), it is evident that perseverance and dedication yield lasting results. The tangible progress in countless lives over the years is a testament to the commitment and sacrifices made by GOUKL—through both triumphs and challenges—to uphold our mission and support vital community projects overseas.

2.4 Mitigation of harm flowing from activities

It is the charities assessment that there is no possibility of harm to anyone flowing from the purposes of the charity and its activities carried out during the year.

2.4 Private benefit

It is the charities assessment that no private benefit was received by anyone who was not an intended beneficiary of the charity.

3. Charity commissions compliance statement

In setting our objectives and planning our activities for the year the directors/trustees have given careful consideration to the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland's guidance on public benefit to ensure that the activities have helped to achieve the charity's purposes and provide a benefit to the beneficiaries

Annual return

Independent examiner's report to the charity trustees of Global Outreach UK Limited

I report on the accounts of Global Outreach UK Limited for the year ended 31 March 2023.

Respective responsibilities of charity trustees and examiner

As the charity trustees (who are also the directors of the company for the purposes of company law) you are responsible for the preparation of the accounts in accordance with the requirements of the Companies Act 2006.

Having satisfied myself that the charity is not subject to audit under company law and is eligible for independent examination, it is my responsibility to:

- examine the accounts under section 65 of the Charities Act
- to follow the procedures laid down in the general Directions given by the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland under section 65(9)(b) of the Charities Act
- to state whether particular matters have come to my attention.

Basis of independent examiner's report

I have examined your charity accounts as required under section 65 of the Charities Act and my examination was carried out in accordance with the general Directions given by the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland under section 65(9) of the Charities Act. The examination included a review of the accounting records kept by the charity and a comparison of the accounts presented with those records. It also included consideration of any unusual items or disclosures in the accounts, and seeking explanations from you as charity trustees concerning any such matters.

My role is to state whether any material matters have come to my attention giving me cause to believe:

1. That accounting records were not kept as required by section 63 of the Charities Act
2. That the accounts do not accord with those accounting records
3. That the accounts do not comply with the accounting requirements of the Charities Act
4. That there is further information needed for a proper understanding of the accounts to be reached.

Independent examiner's statement

Since your charitable company's gross income is below £250,000 your examiner does not need to be a member of a listed body. I can confirm therefore as not a member of one of the listed bodies I may undertake this examination.

I have completed my examination and have no concerns in respect of the matters (1) to (4) listed above and, in connection with following the Directions of the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland, I have found no matters that require drawing to your attention.

2. Public Benefit Report

This reporting period is for 1st April 2022 to 31st Mar 2023, for the most part distanced us from most all of the COVID-19 constraints. During this period the team standing with GOUKL continue to do our normal work while being ever wary of ever lurking newer strains.

During the COVID years almost every angle of GOUKL fundraising was challenged, with serious repercussions in most divisions. Not the least of which was the annual fundraising banquet for each of those COVID years – this needs to be re-structured to re-commenced. The loss of this annual boost to all facets of ministry is far reaching, affecting constraints at every turn of domestic or overseas endeavour. An ever-resourceful team have continued to minister within the scope of their skillset.

As funding permits here in the UK, we are able to fund some of our overseas project. These are from some small feeding project in a far-flung rural village to a small training seminar somewhere on health and wellness.

The national worker is so innovative at times, we are excited to work through their idea give a small project fund package, and encourage them with, for instance, a sewing machine. If they have no material, our funding enables them to buy fabric, make and sell it item for a small profit. This is most encouraging for them and can be the beginning of a micro business for a previously un-employed person. This can be multiplied so other machines may be added.

The concept can be developed on other levels also; for example, a small plot of ground rented by the national with our help, then a few seeds and the locals care and in a few weeks' time a few vegetables' can remarketed for a small profit.

Requiring a little more financial help and a little more training, a small plot of land can be rented (with our assistance) a small animal, a few laying hens, ducks, a couple of goats or pigs and in a short time the national is overjoyed to have a tiny 'micromanaged' project with a tiny profit margin. The self-worth experienced for these individuals is beyond telling. A project of this nature has been introduced in Uganda by one of our team and is showing interesting results.

As we continue to slowly recover financially after the COVID-19 debacle, the ministry can, with trepidation continue to explore and develop in small ways, the above tiny projects, managed by the national, but in partnership with this ministry. The possibilities are endless and exciting for them and us. Training and leadership continue to be two important pillars that we continue to build on.

2.2 Summary of achievements and outcomes during the year

Our UK team has given leadership ministry to foreign countries for forty years. In recent years we have worked in fewer countries, but at the outset many other countries were laboured in. The growth and development we see in the national worker continues to reward us beyond expectation.

With the quantum leap taken by technology in recent decades and years helps us track with the national in ministry and skill-set ways. Zoom alone, not to mention so many other platforms and services is enabling us to explore exceptional leads and project that the national may readily train for and explore his opportunities. From my office, in whatever country I happen to be in Zoom opens a world of audio/visual communication un-heard of a few years ago.

For example, with Zoom, recently I lectured from my office here, to an Asian country. Several hundred were in the auditorium, with two simultaneous interpreter's, that venue re broadcast to two other auditorium's each with several hundred people. From that site, twelve smaller study groups each with ten or more smaller groups also tuned in. In total from my office the team was able to teach at least 1,200-1,500 students, all understanding three languages. This was accomplished with the minimum of cost or effort.

2.3 Summary of benefits and impact made during the year.

With the passing of each year we in leadership look back on earlier years with guarded delight. In the beginning we used our best skills, we worked with the raw material we had and were delighted to have just a few who allowed us to pour into them of our own, then, limited skills and resources.

Little by little, over many years, the team, as we ourselves have grown, we have watched with delight as each new person has joined the team in one of our overseas 'ports of call', so to speak! Year on Year, decade on decade we review past years, mostly with delight but sometimes with a twinge of anxiety as we spot areas that need a slight 'tweaking'.

Probably no better way to summarize than to relate the following: As each year's efforts build on the former, we now see solidarity with the national team. Years of working together has developed skills with real confidence.

On the occasion that we visit a country, they have a national luncheon to celebrate our being there. On one occasion they invited their spouses and children, even adult children. Many of these adult children had university degrees, some with theological, business and music degrees to supplement the work the father was doing.

When visiting one assembly of people, the pastor asked, how many people in the audience responded to making life changing decisions when I lectured there about thirty six years ago, and sixteen people stood to their feet attesting to this being their home assembly, beginning that day.

Going to these countries now, after forty years of working with them (GOUKL has been around since 2001) it's easy to summarise showing hard work, and persistence produces satisfactory long-term legacy.

The continuing substantial progress in so many individual lives, now for us with a legacy spanning four decades, and having touched lives for the greater good in every way and is only possible as this charity (GOUKL) has shed blood sweat and tears in good times and not so good, to honour our commitments to our 'vital people projects' overseas.

2.4 Mitigation of harm flowing from activities

It is the charities assessment that there is no possibility of harm to anyone flowing from the purposes of the charity and its activities carried out during the year.

2.4 Private benefit

It is the charities assessment that no private benefit was received by anyone who was not an intended beneficiary of the charity.

3. Charity commissions compliance statement

In setting our objectives and planning our activities for the year the directors/trustees have given careful consideration to the Charity Commission for Northern Ireland's guidance on public benefit to ensure that the activities have helped to achieve the charity's purposes and provide a benefit to the beneficiaries
