What the charity does: We step forward to embrace our pain community – those with pain, and those who care for them – hoping to achieve a world where pain is better understood and does not stop people living the life they choose to live. • Our Self-Management Navigator Tool helps patients and professionals work together to improve life with pain. • Airing Pain podcasts are created by an award-winning producer and explore the latest issues in pain. • Our magazine, Pain Matters, is guest-edited by pain experts and features contributions from all over the world. • Our helpline and online support network provide safe spaces where people connect and feel understood. They give direct insight into the challenges people are facing, keeping our work focused on key issues. • Pain education sessions are produced through a unique partnership with the NHS. Educators have lived experience of pain. • Our research provides insight into the state of pain services and the experiences of people in pain.
