What the charity does: Abriachan Forest Trust is a community owned sustainably managed woodland of 540 hectares. It is open to the public to encourage access for all, thus promoting improved health and wellbeing of stakeholders. We also provide specific outdoor learning and recreation programmes for all abilities including those who are or have been more disadvantaged in their life experiences. These include participation in nature restoration activities, creative projects and assorted maintenance tasks within the forest's 35 km path network and native woodlands. As well as social/recreational forestry, the management also includes some areas of commercial planting to ensure the financial sustainability of the community's social enterprise. This supports seven education, maintenance and administration staff. The volunteers on the Board of Trustees are advised by a professional forester.

Beneficiaries: 'Children or young people', 'People with disabilities or health problems', 'No specific group, or for the benefit of the community', 'Other charities or voluntary bodies'

Objectives: To support local and national initiatives which aim to extend native woodlands significantly within Scotland by improving the cultural, educational and recreational aspects of native woodlands and by rebuilding the social relationship between the communities of Scotland and their local woodlands.
