Activities

Activities: 'It carries out activities or services itself'

Purposes: 'the advancement of citizenship or community development', 'the advancement of human rights, conflict resolution or reconciliation'

What the charity does: The charity provides a range of services primarily to help parents and children going through the rigours of parental separation and/or divorce. It provides three main services in this context, namely, Child Contact Centres (for non-resident parents to be able to spend time with their children either on a Supervised basis, a Supported basis or a Handover basis at/from our Child Contact Centre in Hamilton), Child Focused Mediation and Parenting Apart group sessions. Contact Centre services are provided in person or online. Mediation is provided on an online basis either face to face or by Shuttle mediation. Parenting Apart is provided online and includes a number of different parents although both parents from separation would not be at the same session. All of these services are also available for grandparents and other family members if appropriate and can include stepfamily and intergenerational mediation.

Beneficiaries: 'Children or young people', 'Other defined groups'

Objectives: To promote the welfare and relieve the needs of divorced and separating couples, whether or not involved in any court proceedings, and any children of such couples, by assisting, so far as is possible, in the amicable resolution of any disputes arising from divorce or separation in respect of the future care and welfare of the said children, in the appreciation and understanding of the problems and the interests of such children in adapting to and coping with their changed situations and circumstances and in any other way whatsoever charitable in law.
