Objectives and activities

Charitable purposes

The Igbo Women Association Glasgow (IWAG) is dedicated to empowering women from Black and minority ethnic communities by addressing challenges such as poverty, isolation, and exclusion. We support women through community connection, cultural engagement, health and wellbeing awareness, and practical support during important life events. IWAG also promotes Igbo culture, heritage, arts, and community values, helping to preserve shared heritage and strengthen social inclusion.

Summary of the main activities in relation to these objects

During the year, the charity's activities were more limited than in previous years. However, IWAG continued to support its members and wider community through regular meetings, welfare support, and community engagement.

The charity carried out condolence visits to support bereaved families and baby birth visits to encourage and support new mothers. IWAG also held birthday celebrations and other fellowship activities which helped reduce isolation and strengthen relationships among members.

As part of its health and wellbeing focus, the charity invited Mandi Moore to speak to members on health and wellbeing matters. This provided an opportunity for members to gain awareness and encouragement around personal wellbeing.

IWAG also collaborated with other community associations during the year, including participation in cultural dance activities with the Igbo Union. These activities helped promote Igbo culture and heritage while encouraging unity and community participation.

Overall, It continued to meet its charitable purposes by supporting women, promoting wellbeing, preserving cultural heritage, and strengthening community relationships.

Financial review

Brief statement of the charity's policy on reserves

Igbo Women Association Glasgow aims to keep reasonable reserves to support ongoing activities, meet unexpected costs, and allow funds received in one year to be used for planned activities in the following year where needed.

At the year end, the charity held unrestricted funds of £11,435, which the trustees consider reasonable for the charity's current activities.

Details of any deficit

The charity recorded net outgoing resources of £571 for the year, mainly due to the timing of activities and the use of funds brought forward from previous years.

At the year end, the charity still held total unrestricted funds of £11,435, and the trustees consider the charity to remain financially stable.
