Overview

Between April 2024 and March 2025, Dunfermline Regeneration Trust (DRT) has made significant strides in delivering on its mission to support community-led regeneration and cultural development in Scotland's newest city. Working in close partnership with local residents, Fife Council, creative practitioners and other key stakeholders, the Trust has progressed a range of projects designed to revitalise public spaces and provide accessible cultural and social opportunities for the local community.

Our Projects

The Dunfermline Skatepark Project.

One of the year's flagship successes has been hitting the funding target to transform and rebuild the Dunfermline Skatepark. Following years of community advocacy and Trust-led fundraising, the £340,000 threshold required to replace and upgrade the existing park to create a vibrant, inclusive space for local skaters, boarders, BMX riders and scooter users has been reached.

In March 2025 a final sendoff event was held at the old skatepark before demolition took place. This skate jam was attended by skaters from all over Scotland. Construction of the new skatepark is due to begin in April 2025 and will complete in summer 2025.

The DRT team of fully trained skateboard coaches delivered schools engagement activities to two local primary schools. These were very well received; feedback was overwhelmingly positive and demonstrates a clear appetite for such activities in our community.

Other Projects

The Trust has continued to lead on the development of Dunfermline Media City, an ambitious and growing programme of work aimed at positioning the city as a centre of excellence for film making, screen education, and digital storytelling. Highlights this year included the first DMC Showcase in November, an event pitched as 'part careers fair, part TED talk' which brought together experts and volunteers who live locally and have made their way into different arenas within film making to share their stories with an audience of both high-schoolers and industry professionals.

Meanwhile, Studio 8 at Fire Station Creative was established in December as the home of Film Education Dunfermline (F.E.D.), with the space now equipped for podcasting, screen acting classes, and video editing. Weekly "Acting for Screen" workshops were launched in January 2025, offering opportunities for young people to gain confidence, performance skills, and industry insight. These developments formed the foundation for a wider vision to support careers in the creative industries, particularly for young people who might not otherwise have access.

Funding was obtained to kick-off a Feasibility Study into development of a dedicated city centre cinema, with three buildings under consideration including the former Robins Cinema, St Margaret's House and the Music Institute at Carnegie Hall. A team of experts is developing this for the Trust and is due to report back in summer 2025.

The Trust has also been supporting efforts to establish the Tower Burn Trail, an active travel culture and heritage route which links the national cycleway at William Street with the city centre. Taking a lead on the Golfdrum Street portion of the Trail, the DRT is seeking to raise funds and support to renovate the Victorian-era iron footbridge at Phoenix Lane which used to take pedestrians over the railway line.
