What the charity does: Touch of Love Outreach works to reduce poverty and inequality and to strengthen community well-being in Aberdeen & Aberdeenshire. We support children, young people, families, New Scots and minority ethnic communities, and we also run an open-access food bank service that supports anyone in need, regardless of background. We do this by providing practical support such as food parcels and essential items through our food banks and mobile outreach, alongside advice, signposting and referrals to other services. We deliver youth programmes, sports, arts, cultural and educational activities that build confidence, skills, resilience and belonging. We also run parent and family support sessions that reduce isolation, improve wellbeing and help people navigate life in Scotland. Our work is community-led, shaped by lived experience, and delivered in partnership with local services and volunteers to create lasting positive change.
