Objectives and activities

Our charity was set up to support people, predominantly adults, with profound and multiple learning disabilities, their families and carers.

Our purposes are:

to advance health, community development, and provide relief primarily to adults in need by reason of severe, complex and profound multiple learning disabilities, autistic spectrum disorder and/or global developmental delay who are in need of support to lead fulfilling lives, and to those ends, to provide benefit and support to their families and those who care for them.

Our four working themes are:

- building community for mutual support for all the following: people with PMLD, their family members, their carers, their supporters in community
- arranging appropriate activities in suitable surroundings
- raising the profile in a positive way of people with PMLD, who can be overlooked as a minority group, seeking to transform perceptions of people with PMLD, within a Human Rights approach
- advocating for people within this group, in the following ways: on behalf of the whole group, and groups within it, particular families and individuals

Who we are

Within the Trustee body, our Patrons and community networks, we have a great deal of experience of living with PMLD and autistic spectrum disorder. We have first hand knowledge of the harmful effects on individuals and families of negotiating the care system, from childhood into adulthood and onwards. We also know how harmful the effects of poor care can be.

We also know first-hand what is helpful. We seek to share good practice with people in the groups listed below.

We seek to share our knowledge with:

- parents, families and their advocates, including the press
- the statutory sector, including Scottish Government, advisory and regulatory bodies, health boards, HSCPs
- academics
- Human Rights groups
- third sector organisations.

“As a Trustee who has lived with a sibling with PMLD almost all my life, I am very aware of the benefits an organisation like the Aiteal Trust can provide to such families. It can offer both moral & practical support & be a voice for the PMLD community.”

These were our main activities during the year:

- Research: continuing the research we published in 2023, that brings people together including PMLD, family, wider community
- Hospitality, bringing people together, intentionally creating community, sharing information, with people with PMLD, families, professionals
- Advocating, based on the 'proof of concept' of quality care from our research, based on 'low arousal', trauma-informed, good communication; sharing this information with families and professionals. We did this with a view to bringing about change which from first hand experience we understood to be necessary, backed by Scottish Government's own policies on care in community rather than detention in hospital, in their 'Coming Home' work.
- Profile-raising - seeking to show people with PMLD as people with human rights, citizens, emphasising their capacity, enjoying relationships and interests. We seek to change public perception of people with PMLD.
- Housekeeping: development of trustee body, relationships, report writing for OSCR; development and upkeep of a website

Trustee writes:

As a long standing Trustee I have first hand experience of watching [redacted] and the community grow over time.

The work of the Trust in creating the framework to support both [redacted] and the wider community has seen understanding, patience, and collaboration grow and develop. This has resulted in a community that is creative, empathetic and growing stronger.

■■■■■■■■■■ involvement in meaningful engagement in the community fosters a sense of empowerment for him but it also sends a message of hope to other families who visit Appletree as well.

Watchin ■■■■■■■■ onfidence develop as he supports a community to grow is powerful and inspiring. He demonstrates just how resilient he is and highlights all the benefits of inclusivity and belonging in the community.

■■■■■■■■ is a leader in his own right, through the work of the trust ■■■■■■■■ is seen as an active contributor and change-maker as opposed to a passive recipient of help.

Structure, governance and management

We are governed by a Constitution which we adopted in January 2021 after legal advice from a firm of solicitors specialising in Charity law.

We are a SCIO, a Scottish Charitable Incorporated Organisation.

Trustee recruitment and appointment

Our Trustee body has remained stable throughout the year. In a year of consolidation, we have made new relationships with a widening network of community and family connections, giving us scope for future recruitment should that become necessary.

Achievements and performance

This is a summary of the main achievements of the charity during the financial period.

Hospitality

This is by invitation of [REDACTED] who offers his home as a venue. We organised outside catering and an outside professional musician to provide music and community singing. Guests at the party included our Patro [REDACTED] with her mother and carer; two more ladies with PMLD who are wheelchair users, with family acting as carers; families, community supporters, Trustees.

[REDACTED] enjoys planning for parties, he and other visitors were pleased to meet each other, they enjoyed the event, the singing. They have few other opportunities to meet in a peer group. Out of this event grew relationships, other opportunities to meet.

Parents enjoyed an opportunity to meet with others to discuss what their hopes and concerns are. They are supported in a safe space where others understand the issues they face. They are supported by our Trustee [REDACTED] who is Arts Director for PAMIS, and [REDACTED] Chief Officer of PAMIS. Parents have few opportunities in a community in this way.

There were many community supporters, who recognise and praise the skills of the carers, benefitting them from public acknowledgement.

By engaging with our neighbours we establish positive views of PMLD.

Visits to Appletree

Our Patron, [REDACTED] came for tea. His presence affirms for staff the importance and value of their work. His support for the charity affirms the importance of people with PMLD, their families and us as a Trustee body. By informing him of what we do he is informed to speak about it more widely.

There were other visitors from community and faith groups. They learned about us first hand, we share our 'proof of concept' of a gentle way of caring for people with PMLD who have been detained in hospital, and now are living well in community. They now can share a positive story about people with PMLD

Advocating

Our events offer encounters with our Chair [REDACTED] [REDACTED] Creative Director at PAMIS for family members /parents / community supporters to follow up. When they have sought one-to-one support, [REDACTED] have provided this, [REDACTED] as a fellow parent [REDACTED] as Director of PAMIS. [REDACTED] where appropriate, signposts people towards organisations with appropriate resources including PAMIS, Scottish Commission for People with Learning Disabilities.

[REDACTED] as been involved in Scottish Government's Coming Home work stream since 2018. This is to do with the detention of people with learning disabilities in hospital or private sector Assessment and Treatment Units, seeking to fulfil their human rights by moving them into appropriate community settings.

[REDACTED] represented parents' voices of lived experience in NHS Tayside's Redesign of Learning Disability Services at the V&A Museum, Dundee in March 2024.

██████████ speaks in her own voice, from her own and her son's experience of detention in hospital and as Chair of the charity.

██████████ represents more widely, the experiences of people with PMLD, their families and carers in forums where the majority of people speak as professionals. ██████████ seeks to focus attention on the people with Learning Disabilities ██████████ the heart of the issue and their families.

██████████ points to the 'proof of concept' that is Appletree Community, as described in the Aiteal Trust's research. She offers hospitality to professional colleagues to 'come and see'. She offers 'good news' stories about people with PMLD as opposed to the 'problem paradigm'.

Profile-raising

Throughout 2024, the Trustees sought to raise the profile of the 'proof of concept', the model of care, at the heart of the research report.

They decided on three means of raising the profile:

- To explore the commissioning of a film to take the impact of our story to a wider audience

- To plan a community outing to Iona Abbey for 2025, for people with PMLD, their families, carers and supporters
- To exhibit the research [REDACTED] Story: the Story of Appletree' in Scottish Parliament, to raise awareness with MSPs and Ministers of detention and harming of people with PMLD in hospitals. This would be done to bring the 'Coming Home' work stream to wider awareness amongst MSPs, along with issues about Human Rights for this minority group. The intention was to display the findings of our research in professional graphics, produced by our partners in Edinburgh Napier University.

Outcomes of our work

The Aiteal Trust has established a strong link with PAMIS, the national charity that supports people with PMLD. [REDACTED] Director of Creative Arts at PAMIS, is one of our trust [REDACTED] dynamic link between the two charities. Relationships, communities, networks are what we seek to establish.

The Aiteal Trust has established a visible profile in national circles about its concern for people with PMLD, their families and carers, Human Rights and alternatives to detention. TV and Radio broadcasts are advertising we exist and our values.

People with PMLD and their families and carers are getting to hear about us and some have experience of visiting us. We have established a network of connections that extends beyond our immediate area. We offer hospitality that benefits others and we benefit from connections we make.

Impacts

Our socialising events creates a network of connections amongst people with PMLD, who come to know each other and to make relationships. Some then meeting on other occasions. Several of them are members of advisory groups to Scottish Government. By coming together, they make connections between different work streams, that are otherwise not joined up, they share contacts and information.

[REDACTED], Trustee, provided a useful anecdote. He was speaking to a Mum who had not visited Appletree before. She said to him “this is exactly the set-up that could work for x “ (her daughter.) She wasn’t meaning the building, she meant the Model of Care we can demonstrate, the importance of understanding the person cared-for and their needs, reducing their stress, enabling them to live well.

Later, this mother, having seen for herself, the model of ‘low-arousal’, trauma-informed care with an emphasis on communication, that met the needs of the person cared for, was inspired to seek something similar for her daughter. She had ‘proof of concept’ to share with her social worker and other statutory sector partners to propose changes to benefit her daughter’s care.

Volunteers

We are grateful to all who support the Aiteal Trust: our Patrons, Trustees, community friends, our Funders, our neighbours. We are also grateful to the volunteers from PAMIS who bring the mobile changing toilet to our events.

Financial review

Income

The Aiteal Trust has benefited from generous donations since its inception with significant contributions from the Dinning Trust [REDACTED] and numerous other friends and supporters – both individuals and groups.

Expenditure

As described elsewhere in this report, the Aiteal Trust continues to spend money on various activities in pursuit of its aims. Expenditure has been higher this year with additional activities including initial spending for the trip to Iona, which the Trust supported and the Scottish Parliament event (beyond this reporting period, February 2025) at which the Trust provided catering and covered other minor expenses.

Statement of the charity's policy on reserves

Whilst The Aiteal Trust does not have a formal policy on reserves, the trustees aim to maintain sufficient funds to enable ongoing activities in pursuit of its aims. At the same time the trustees recognize that generous donations were provided on the assumption that they would be spent and not simply kept in a bank account, hence the willingness to increase our outgoings over the last period. The Aiteal Trust currently has a healthy balance.

Donated facilities and services

Our facilities for our community meetings are donated without charge by a man with PMLD, whose home has suitable, safe, indoor and outdoor community space alongside his own accommodation. His mother and Deputy is our Chair.

Our Chair works without payment on our advocacy services, research and profile-raising. All our Trustees give their time by donation. We are grateful to them for this.

Future plans

Our plans for the year 12th January 2025 - 11th January 2026:

Research

Continuing our collaborative research. This is with people with PMLD, their families and carers, the charity PAMIS, the University of Portsmouth and Edinburgh Napier. It is based on the 'proof of concept' established in our research published in 2023 'Louis's Story: the Story of Appletree' www.theaitealtrust.com/resesarch

Hospitality

Continuing to hold parties at Appletree Community to gather people.

Profile-raising

Continuing work with film maker Land and Sky Media, to develop a film for release. This shows positive images of a man with PMLD within his network of carers, family and community, living well. This is the visual story showing the 'proof of concept' that emerged from our research. There are four perceived audiences: people with PMLD; their families and friends and carers; policy makers and professionals; the general public (there is potential overlap). In all cases we seek to transform public perceptions, by showing our lead character in positive terms, as a person first, a leader within his community, a political figure, a change-maker.

Advocating

Continuing to work with BBC Scotland and Radio Scotland, speaking on behalf of people with PMLD, their families and carers. To advocate publicly on the benefits of 'low-arousal' care approaches, the promotion of a Human Rights approach, in order to promote well-being of people with PMLD, their families and carers.

We also speak out on behalf of individuals and families, with their permission. We do this, building a body of experience.
