Activities

Activities: 'It carries out activities or services itself'

Purposes: 'the advancement of education'

What the charity does: GPAS is a forum to: Provide mutual, self-support for rural General Practitioners (GPs). • Promote Scottish rural General Practice and the support of rural communities. • Deliver rural practice education and research. • Discussion and debate rural healthcare issues. • Represent the interests of rural GP practices in Scotland and the clinicians associated with these practices • Provide encouragement and training support to students and doctors interested in rural practice. The annual RGPAS Conference is centrally important to bring together the disparate membership, providing the opportunity to: • Meet face to face to develop friendships and create professional networks. • Support and encourage medical students and doctors in training who are interested in rural General Practice. • Learn through the activities of the conference programme and discuss topical issues. • Hold the Annual General Meeting and agree priorities for the coming year. Our Values align with those of NHS Scotland.

Beneficiaries: 'Other defined groups'

Objectives: The organisation has been formed to benefit the Rural GP Community of Scotland ('the Community'). The organisation's purpose is: (a) The Advancement of Education in Science through (i) Acting as a forum for the educational and professional needs of rural GPs in Scotland. (ii) Representing the interests of rural GP practices in Scotland, and the clinicians associated with those practices. and (iii) Promoting access to learning environments for students for the purpose of developing the primary healthcare team.
